Hail! Frank Munsey
The Seven Sleepers
Hail! Also Henry Ford
Learn from England
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

Thirty-eight years ago yesterday, Frank Munsey came down from Maine, where he was born, to see what could be seen in New York.

"At that time," said he, "the sky line of lower New York was dominated by P. T. Babbit's four-story brick soap factory."

The New York sky line has risen. So has Frank Munsey. When he reached New York Hearst was little more than an infant, Pulitzer was unknown, Dana was running the Sun, Bennett was running the Herald. Now Munsey runs the Sun and the Herald. Long may he wave.

MacSwiney, the Lord Mayor, if alive this morning, will begin the forty-first day of his fast. One more day and he will have equalled the world's fasting record, made by Dr. Tanner. Tanner fasted for pay. MacSwiney for patriotism.

Faith in a good cause is the most powerful incentive, but the strongest faith today is nothing to what it was in the past. Consider the famous "Seven Sleepers of Ephesus," described by Gregory of Tours. They hid in a cave from persecutors of Christians and the cave entrance was cruelly blocked. The seven martyrs fell asleep in each other's arms.

Nearly two hundred years afterward a shepherd opened the cave and woke them. One, Jamblicus, who went out to buy food, was astonished to see the Christian Cross hidden in his day, displayed above the city gate. To the Emperor Theodosis the seven sleepers explained that the miracle had been arranged to confirm his belief in the resurrection of the dead. Then they went to sleep again.

Mayor MacSwiney must soon go into a long sleep. If he could come back, long before two hundred years, he might find flying over the city of Dublin, the Irish flag that he now has in his cell in Brixton prison.

Henry Ford announces a cut of thirty-one per cent. in the price of passenger automobiles, and fourteen per cent. in the price of trucks, without reduction in wages paid his men. Many men in business, dealing in coal, iron and labor would like to know how Henry Ford does it.

Again it is desirable to call the country's attention to the fact that Ford, certainly the second or third richest man in the United States, has made his fortune by giving the people the best he knows how for the lowest possible price.

Apparently the thing can be done, and profiteering is not essential to prosperity.

Learn from England, her labor troubles and her imperial spread-ing out, that America, if wise, will stay here and attend to American business on this continent.

England is wondering whether she is to have any coal after the next few days. Smiley, leader of the miners, whose power is second to that of Lloyd George, if not greater than that of Lloyd George, is making up his mind about it.

His position is powerful even with the public for his demands cheaper coal for the consumer by twelve shillings a ton, and higher wages for the miner.

How would he do it? Simply. The wise British government limits the profits of coal mine owners. On coal shipped abroad the government takes for itself a great profit amounting to sixty million pounds, three hundred million dollars a year.

Smiley says, "out of profit that government takes and spends, from coal that we miners produce, we shall pay ourselves better wages and give the citizens cheaper coal," and he adds, which embarrasses the Imperial British government: "Stop your nonsense in Mesopotamia, bring back your soldiers, stop spending millions where you have no business, and you will save exactly the thirty-five million pounds that we need to increase our own wages and give the country cheaper coal."

Smiley's figures are accurate and that makes it hard to deal with them.

What interests the average American is that if we went into the League of Nations, they would give us a chance to do that spending in Asia, and the lord knows where, and we don't want or need the chance.

Miss Belle M. Batse writes: "Today's note is much a habit with me as coffee for breakfast. But when you say that Mr. Fischer could not receive telephonic messages you denounce the superiority of mind over matter."

Not at all. You state that mind is intelligent enough to know that it needs matter to produce material results.

Providence wastes no effort. If it had been possible for us to see each other, talk to each other, understand each other without matter, bodies, hair, teeth, etc., we should have remained disembodied spirits.

BOMB WARNINGS RECEIVED IN BOSTON AND FALL RIVER

GIRL SLAIN POLICE HINT

Mother of Dorothy Rogers Admits She Frequently Quarreled With Husband

A police dragnet has been spread for Charles Rogers, aged twenty-six, negro stepfather of six-year-old Dorothy Rogers, who met death in a mysterious plunge from the roof of the tenement at No. 69 East Lenox street.

The authorities desire to question Rogers, who is a dining car cook, regarding the child's death.

The latest theory advanced by the police is that little Dorothy was hurled from the roof of the building, the belief that she became lost and went to the roof to sleep having been practically eliminated.

QUARRELED WITH NEGRO.

Mrs. Rogers, who resides with friends at No. 417 Harrison avenue, a considerable distance away from the scene of the tragedy, admitted to the police that Dorothy was born shortly after she was married to the negro. The father of the child is said to have lost his life during the war.

The child's mother said that she had frequently quarreled with Rogers and that she had not lived with him for months. Rogers, when last heard from, was employed on a dining car on the Boston & Albany road.

No evidence that Dorothy had suf-

BOSTON MAN ADMITS CONNECTICUT SHOOTING

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 22.—Examined by Coroner Mix, George Kane, alias McDowell of Providence, R. I., and Ronald G. Devine of Boston, was held for the shooting of Valentine Landra, an Ansonia saloon keeper, admitted that they shot Landra, but claimed that their motive was not robbery. They claimed to have become engaged in an altercation over drinks in the Landra saloon and that the shooting resulted.

LYNN BOY WOUNDED BY COMPANION'S RIFLE

Marvin Sand, aged thirteen, the son of Lara Sands of No. 47 Taontoquon avenue, Lynn, received a bullet wound that may prove fatal when a rifle which his companion, Oswald Primrose, of No. 27 Winnipurkit avenue, was carrying, was accidentally discharged. The accident happened while the boys were hunting in the woods near the Tuberculosis Hospital.

CAMBRIDGE BOY DIES UNDER TRUCK WHEELS

Francis McGillivary, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland McGillivary of No. 248 Brookline street, Cambridge, was killed on Harvard street, Cambridge, when he ran in front of an auto truck. The rear wheel of the truck passed over the boy's head.

BERLIN RAID YIELDS STILL, LIQUOR, MASH

Clinton, Sept. 22.—An illicit still, one quart of whiskey and two bushel of mash were seized by the local authorities when they raided the home of John Domingo in Berlin during the latter's absence. No arrests were made.

'Bring-Your-Lunch' Drive Alarms New York Cafes

BY UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

New York, Sept. 22.—Worried at the success of the bring-your-lunch-from-home movement in Boston, started by the Boston American, members of the New York Society of Restaurateurs held a meeting behind closed doors to discuss what measures could be adopted to cut the mounting cost of eating to the public.

Extension of the co-operative buying plan, which the members of the society have already applied to dishes and other supplies and the operation of a laundry, was suggested. A campaign was urged to include more restaurant owners in the association and to establish connections with manufacturers and producers of food, cutting out the middleman and retailer.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The senior manager of a chain of restaurants in this city has been informed by United States Attorney Stephen T. Lockwood that he has the alternative of cutting prices to a 1919 schedule or facing grand jury proceedings.

"Our investigation has shown that cost prices to restaurants have gone back to the 1919 schedule," Attorney Lockwood declared. "There should be a reduction, sweeping in scope, in this city."

Candidate Walsh Urges More to Bring Lunches

Attorney John Jackson Walsh, Democratic candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, is the latest member of the Boston American's Bring-Your Lunch-From-Home Club as a protest against profiteering prices in Boston restaurants. The Democratic nominee's wife is an excellent cook, as her lunches testify.

"The most important problem before the people of this country for solution today," said Mr. Walsh, "is the pillage of the people's pocketbooks. We must stop it. It is even more important than the League of Nations question.

CALL PRICES EXORBITANT.

"The Boston American's lunch-from-home club is a splendid thing. The American should be commended by all right thinking people for advocating this method of reducing the cost of living. There are a few Boston restaurants that are selling meals at fair prices but a great many of them are charging absolutely exorbitant prices. The prices charged are

GULF COAST IN GRIP OF RAGING HURRICANE

Fort Arthur, Texas, Sept. 22.—A hurricane is raging along the gulf coast of Texas and Louisiana and as far as Corpus Christi, Texas, according to information received by the local Marconi wireless station here. The storm is moving northwestward with dangerous winds accompanying it, the report said. All ships are being held in port.

Beaumont, Texas, Sept. 22.—A forerunner of the Gulf Coast hurricane reached here when high winds whipped a light rain into a lashing rain storm. All ships are being held in the port.

CHARLESTOWN BABY FALLS THREE STORIES

Walter Redwansky, aged two, of No. 24 Beach street, Charlestown, fell from the third story of his home, a distance of about twenty-five feet, and was removed to the Relief Hospital, where it was discovered he was suffering from multiple contusions and abrasions. The police are investigating the cause of the accident.

HAVERHILL SHOE STRIKE GROWS

12,000 More Workers Likely to Walk Out to Enforce Peace Pact

Haverhill, Sept. 22.—With 6,000 operatives loafing and prospects of 12,000 others joining them shortly, this city faces an industrial war that promises to become contagious and react on other cities and towns throughout the State.

There is a big falling off in business and storekeepers are hard hit as a result of the large army of unemployed shoe workers.

Manufacturers and operatives are deadlocked on the so-called peace pact, a working agreement containing thirteen articles. The operatives refuse to accept it until prices have been definitely adjusted. At meetings of their respective unions the proposition, despite the entreaties of the manufacturers to favor the agreement, was rejected by an overwhelming vote.

THREATEN BANK MOVE.

The workers threaten to withdraw their deposits from local banks and compel the bank officials to call in loans made to manufacturers. Union officials feel this will cause the latter to weaken and come around to their way of thinking.

Three manufacturers have moved elsewhere, and others threaten to follow.

Operatives declare the manufacturers are trying to kill their unions and resort to underground methods.

Both sides are prepared for a long

SOCIALISTS OUT AGAIN AT ALBANY

Three Re-Elected Members Ousted by Assembly; Other Two Resign as Protest

By Universal Service.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22.—For te second time this year five assembly districts of New York city will not be represented in te State Legislature. The Assembly voted to oust three of he five re-elected Socialist Assemblymen. The other two resigned.

By a votes of 99 to 45 Louis Waldman, August Classen and Charles Solomon were unseated by the State Assembly. Socialist Assemblyman Hillquit was allowed to retain his seat by a vote of 87 to 48, and Samuel Orr was seated by approximately the same vote. Both, however, immediately resigned.

"Inasmuch as the Assembly has seen fit to declare my colleagues as disloyal and unfit to sit in this body, I allocate to myself the right to sit

CARDINAL O'CONNELL AT SHRINE STONE LAYING

Washington, Sept. 22. — William Cardinal O'Connell and other Catholic prelates are in Washington today for the laying of the corner stone tomorrow of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception to be erected at a cost of $5,000,000 at the Catholic University of America as a memorial to American soldiers and sailors who died in the war and as a monument to Mary, Mother of Jesus.

Among those who will attend the services are the Spanish, Argentine, Brazilian, and Chilian Ambassadors, the Cuban, Honduran, Polish, Serbian and Venezuelan Ministers, and the Charges d'Affaires of Belgium, Bolivia, Colombia, Czecho-Slovkia, Finland, France, Greece, The Netherlands, Panama, Rumania, Switzerland and Italy.

CENTENNIAL QUEEN IS SECRET BRIDE

Portland, Me., Sept. 22.—The secret marriage of Alice E. Skillings, who was voted queen of the South Portland centennial celebration, has been revealed. She was married two months ago in Boston to Carl L. Murphy, a childhood sweetheart. After spending a honeymoon in Boston and Casco they returned to their respective homes in South Portland.

BOY'S BODY FOUND IN QUEQUECHAN RIVER

Fall River, Sept. 22.—The body of a boy was found in the Quequechan river under the Pocasset Mills. The police are making an investigation to find out if any local boy has been missing from his home during the last few days.

AUTO SPEEDS AWAY AFTER HITTING WOMAN

Sarah Marcus, No. 45 McLean street, West End, is at the City Hospital suffering with a lacerated left foot and bruises about the body as the result of being struck by an automobile while crossing Boylston street at Berkeley. The machine sped away.

Cox Betters Now Ask Seven to One

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—The odds that Harding will triumph in the November elections continue to soar. Harding backers in Wall Street were today offering five to one, while Cox men were demanding seven to one. The betting was not very heavy, however.

The largest bet recorded today was one of $5,500 on Harding to $1,000 on Cox.

MacSWINEY IN COLLAPSE AGAIN

12 Fatal Shootings in Erin as Mayor Begins 41st Day of Hunger Strike

BULLETIN

London, Sept. 22.—Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, was prostrated today as he began the forty-first day of his hunger strike in protest against his arrest and imprisonment. He is suffering severe pains in the head. The prisoner has been rubbed with oil to prevent bedsores.

By Universal Service.

Dublin, Sept. 22.—Twelve fatal shootings were reported from various parts of the country today coincidental with the sacking of the town of Balbriggan by British police in the fiercest reprisal that has taken place in Ireland.

Balbriggan was today in fear of the return of the police to continue their reprisal. Several houses were plundered by police who leaped from the raiding trucks, evidently to guide the incendiaries who are to return later, according to the police threat.

Gibbons, the murdered Sinn Feiner, was made to stand in the centre of a ring, marked in the dirt of the road, and was then bayonetted to death. Canon Burns, the pastor of Balbriggan, in an interview said that the marks of twenty-five bayonet thrusts were found on Gibbons' body.

Dublin, Sept. 22.—The leaders of Sinn Fein have issued a statement charging that the forces of the British government have murdered thirty-three persons in Ireland since June.

100,000 Families Face Eviction in New York

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—One hundred thousand families in this city face eviction on October 1, the Mayor's committee on rent profiteering announces.

Reckoning four to a family, try to imagine the entire population of Newark, New Orleans, St. Louis, or any other city of the same size, wiped clean of inhabitants.

Almost a half million persons look forward to the first of the Halloween month with trepidation. There are no flats or apartments to rent at prices they can pay, and they will not be allowed to remain in the places they occupy.

Arthur J. W. Hilly, chairman of the committee said that he is swamped with complaints and is utterly unable to handle them all. He said that unless the tenants are allowed to remain by court order and permitted to pay such rent as the court may fix, all these tenants will find themselves homeless.

The legislators are doing their best to devise workable housing legislation. Several bills have been prepared and are being amended in order to satisfy as many as possible.

DEATH NOTE SENT MAYOR PETERS

The wheels of Federal, State and city police agencies were started today in an effort to run to earth the writers of anonymous warnings that bomb outrages are contemplated in Boston, New Bedford and Fall River which will involve the destruction of city halls, banks, mills and the death of Mayor Peters.

The letter received by Mayor Peters, the third sent him within a year, was mailed in New York from the Central postoffice, September 20, and bore a 10:30 a. m. time mark. It advised the Mayor that he would get his "medicine next."

Mayor J. H. Kay of Fall River, according to District Attorney Joseph T. Kenney at Bristol County, received in the mail a warning that the city halls of Fall River and New Bedford and mills and banks in those two cities would be made the objects of simultaneous bomb attacks tomorrow.

Mayor Kay turned the letter over to the Fall River police and Mayor

"DANISH BERNHARDT" HERE TO TOUR COUNTRY

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—Oda Nelsen, the Danish Bernhardt, arrived here from Denmark aboard the "Hellig-lax." She is just sixty years. She plans to tour the country giving performances of Ophelia. She brought with her Christopher Gottschalk, a famous Danish tenor, and Waldemar Wilmsen, a pianist.

$7,000 IN JEWELS TAKEN BY EAST MARION THIEVES

New Bedford, Sept. 22.—Jewelry valued at $6,000 was stolen by burglars in the home of Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman at East Marion. The quarters occupied by Mrs. Walter Gilman Pace in the Pitman house, were also ransacked and a platinum watch, valued at $1,000 stolen.

UNPAID ACTORS BURN SCENERY

Fireworks Spectacle Deserted by Managers and Performers Take Revenge

Agreed, because, upon their arrival at the circus grounds on Huntington avenue to take part in the fire circus spectacle "Europe in Bells and Fire," they found the grounds dark, the managers absent and no money to pay them for their union in the performances of Saturday and Monday nights, several hundred performers took revenge by tearing down the scenery and setting it on fire as well as to the stage.

Some hundred spectators who had gathered to witness the fireworks, many of whom claimed that they had brought tickets in advance, loitered about the grounds in angry mood, claiming that they had been defrauded.

It is alleged by people living in the vicinity that most of the costumes and other effects used in the production were removed early Wednesday morning by those interested in the show.

Spokesmen of the cast claim that when they demanded their money of the management, Monday they were told to call at 56 Winter street office of the promoters and upon arrival there were told by a man in charge that he knew nothing about the cash due them.

According to the program, "Europe a Battle and Fire" was presented

Wall Street Nervous; Blasting Stopped

New York, Sept. 22.—Wall street is nervous. The street which provides work for thousands, almost all of whom take a flier on the Exchange every now and then, is now apparently biting its finger nails and looking over its shoulder.

Realizing this, the fire department refused the request of Foreman Mullaby, in charge of the blasting job on the Stock Exchange extension, to do some dynamiting in connection with the construction. At 6 o'clock in the morning or at 7 in the evening, hours when the streets were clear of people, he was told he might go ahead with his blasting.

BLOWUP OF CITY HALLS AND MILLS PREDICTED

Ashley of New Bedford was notified. The letter received by Mayor Peters was also turned over to the police. It was written in scrawling hand, partly in script and partly in printed letters and was decorated with crude drawings of skull and crossbones. The warning read as follows:

"You and your crooked government here the blackest & yellowest part of the United States. Will get your medicine next. Was meant for you first. (Drawing of skull and crossbones.) Watching this Gang-hole close. Better job in this town. (Drawing of skull and crossbones) "the Reds."

Pasted on the top of the letter, which was written on ordinary typewriting paper, was posted the following heading clipped from a New York newspaper:

"Warning of Catastrophe in Wall St. Section Issued Wednesday."

Inclosed was also a clipping from a New York newspaper quoting a telegram sent by Governor Coolidge to Samuel Gompers at the time of the Boston police strike. On this clipping, the writer, in red ink, inscribed the words: "Your side kick." Then followed an obscene statement.

FORMER VERMONT MAN DIES IN BROOKLYN

New York, Sept. 22.—Theophilus Olcen, a former president of the old Brooklyn Board of Aldermen and at times during his administration Acting Mayor of Brooklyn, is dead at his home in Brooklyn at the age of eighty-eight years. He was born in Vermont, but for more than half a century had been a resident of Brooklyn.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO WHILE CROSSING STREET

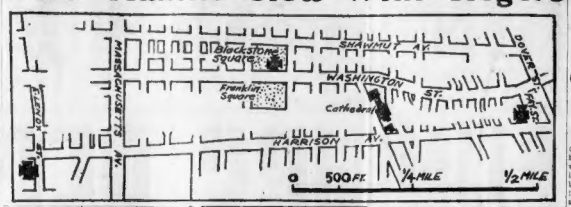
William J. Gardner, aged forty-eight, of No. 123 St. Botolph street, is in a critical condition at the City Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain and laceration of the scalp. His name is one the danger list.

While crossing Columbus avenue, near Rutland street, Gardner was knocked down by an automobile operated by Mrs. Ralph K. Coleman of No. 80 West Rutland square.

NEW JERSEY ELKS OFFER REWARD FOR BOMBERS

Kearney, N. J., Sept. 22.—A reward of $100 is offered by Kearney Lodge No. 1050 of the Elks for the apprehension of the person or persons responsible for the Wall Street explosion. The resolution authorizing the reward strongly condemned terrorism. All other Elk lodges in the country will be notified of the action.

Wife Admits Row With Rogers



Will Urge Woman for War Secretary

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—As a means of assuring peace, the women of America will urge a woman as Secretary of War or Secretary of the Navy, in the next cabinet, according to Mrs. Anna Scott Baker, political chairman of the National Woman's party, in a statement here. Mrs. Baker said first steps toward securing such an appointment would be taken at the national convention of woman voters which will meet here within the next two months.

"Universal peace is the slogan of the women in this campaign," said Mrs. Baker. "They should demand the appointment of a woman as Secretary of War. With a woman at the head of the war department they will be sure of no more wars."

FALSE $20 AND $100 BILLS IN CIRCULATION

Washington, Sept. 22.—Warnings to look out for new $20 and $100 counterfeit Federal Reserve notes were sent out today by Chief Moran of the secret service. The $20 note is on the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia and the $100 note on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

fered any ill treatment before she plunged to death was found by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, who conducted the autopsy. The child, he said, died from a fractured skull. Both legs and several other bones in her body were broken.

Dr. Leary, however, said that he would make a microscopic examination of the wounds and parts of the child's body for evidence of foul play.

CHILD HAD BEEN INSURED.

Mrs. Rogers was grilled again by Captain Perley S. Skillings of the Dudley street station, but the police have been unable to shake her story to the effect that she last saw the child at Blackstone square when Dorothy went to purchase an ice cream cone. The little girl, she said, had been insured for $250, but the policy lapsed about six weeks ago.

Little Dorothy's mother, who says that her parents were French and Spanish and that she was brought up in a negro family, was implicated in a jewelry theft case some time ago, according to the police.

Women to Kill Hooch Viper, Says Bryan

Washington, Sept. 21.—William Jennings Bryan, generalissimo of the dry forces, today forecast that women halfoters will crush for all time the hooch viper in the United States.

"I have great hope for the future," said Mr. Bryan, "because women who have suffered most from the two great evils, war and liquor, now have been given the vote."

Mr. Bryan made this statement in the course of a brief address before the international congress against alcoholism. He spoke in response to an enthusiastic ovation.

'L' ANNOUNCES CHANGE ON ATLANTIC AVENUE

General Manager Edward Dana of the Boston Elevated Railway company announces that beginning Saturday, September 25, through Atlantic avenue Elevated service between Dudley street and Sullivan square will be discontinued.

Elevated trains will be operated on a ten-minute headway from Dudley street via the Washington street tunnel to North station, Atlantic avenue and South station, returning same route. In addition shuttle service will be operated between North and South stations during rush hours.

DENY KENNY IS U. S. CITIZEN

Cork Hunger Striker Failed to Get Second Papers, Dublin Castle Claims

By Universal Service.

Dublin, Sept. 22. — Joseph Kenny, one of the Cork hunger-strikers who have now completed forty-one days without food, is not an American citizen, according to a statement made by Dublin Castle. Kenny, according to the record, took out his first citizenship papers at Douglas, Nebraska, but did not complete the process necessary to make him an American.

The case of Joseph Murphy, for whom American citizenship has been claimed by virtue of the fact that he was born at Lynn, Massachusetts, has been referred to Washington by Consul MacAndrews.

Universal Service was informed that the battle will not differ in the treatment of these two, because of the claims that have been advanced.

PLUMB CHARGES ROADS HAD HAND IN ESCH ACT

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The most un-American piece of legislation ever passed by a Congress of the United States," was the term applied to the Esch-Cummins Railroad Bill by Glenn E. Plumb, author of the Plumb plan, in addressing the convention of the International Association of Machinists.

OLIVE THOMAS' TRAGIC END DROVE GIRL CHUM TO SUICIDE

ANNA DALY VICTIM OF GRIEF

Beautiful Model Has Been Despondent since Mrs. Pickford's Death in Paris

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—Police believe today that the death of her closest friend, Olive Thomas, provided the motive for the suicide by poisoning of Anna Daly, twenty-five years old, found dead in her room in a hotel here Saturday. She had registered as "Elizabeth Anderson, Chicago."

Betty Martin, an actress and friend of both the film star, who died in Paris, and the beautiful young girl who took her life here, furnished the information which enabled the authorities to identify Anna Daly and unravel the mystery surrounding her death.

BOTH POSED AS MODELS.

According to Miss Martin, Anna Daly and Olive Thomas were both and spent the early part of their lives an inseparable chums in McKee's Rocks, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh. They worked together in the one department store the town boasts, and then sought their fortunes together in New York, both posing as "show artists' models and were in much demand, for both were beautiful.

Her success in motion pictures the two continued close friends. Miss Daly had been despondent ever since news of the death of Miss Thomas came from Paris.

Then she had a quarrel with her sweetheart, Miss Martin said, and heartbroken, she disappeared from her friends leaving only a line saying, "I can't stand it any longer."

Asday or two before her disappearance, Miss Daly gave Miss Martin, who has left for Chicago, a package of letters to deliver to this sweetheart, whom she told Miss Martin was in the Western city. She spoke as if she believe these were love letters she was returning to her sweetheart.

Mrs. P. T. Black, arriving here from McKee's Rocks, identified the body positively as that of her sister.

BLAME WIFE'S DESIRE TO BE DANCER FOR TRAGEDY

Worcester, Sept. 22. — That Mrs. Clarence A. Shays, bride of three months, slain by her husband who committed suicide Monday, wanted to go to New York to be a toe dancer, was disclosed today by Mrs. Harry A. Shays, mother-in-law of the slain bride. Mrs. Shays thinks that this was the cause of the quarrels between the newlyweds that led to the double tragedy. The body of the murdered bride was buried today in Riverside Cemetery, Grafton, funeral services being conducted by the Rev. Philip King, pastor of the Grafton Congregational Church.

CAMBRIDGE POLICE FIND STOLEN WALTHAM CAR

Special Officers Stokes and Mallahan of Cambridge Police Headquarters, working in connection with the investigation of auto thiefs being conducted by the Middlesex County officials, recovered a touring car that had been stolen a year ago. Walsh Is "Elected" to Home Lunch Club

John J. Walsh, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, seen qualifying as a full-fledged member of the Bring-Your-Lunch-From-Home Club. Mr. Walsh, like Mayor Peters, carries his lunch from home daily.

"Profiteering on a small scale is as bad as profiteering on a large scale. It is just as bad for a restaurant proprietor to charge ten cents for a cup of coffee, when he should sell for five cents as it is for people to be charged $18 a ton for coal that should be sold to them at $7 a ton. This pillage of the pocketbooks of the people ought to stop and the American's idea of having people carry lunches is a most effective way of preventing this pillage that is going on.

COSTS BOUND TO DROP.

"It is within the power of every working girl, boy, man and woman to bring the profiteering restaurant keepers of Boston to their senses. If enough people decline to pay profiteering prices for lunches, then the resistance of individuals will very quickly reduce their prices and the people will benefit from the drop. A man can't run a business without customers. If the people in great number take their lunches to work, even for a limited time, the restaurant profiteers are bound to take notice.

"When I was a newsboy we could get a meal for a few cents but those happy days are over. Today the people of Boston are being exploited by the restaurant proprietors until this city has become known throughout the country as a difficult place to get a respectable meal at a fair price. It is much easier to get a good meal in other large cities at a reasonable price. Even in New York city, despite the high rentals, you can get a good meal at a lower price than in Boston."

CLUB IS BOOMING.

"You can put me down as one of the strongest advocates of the American's lunch-from-home movement. I believe in it thoroughly. It is the proper remedy for one class of profiteering."

The American's movement to loosen the hold of restaurant bandits from the people's purses is the talk of Boston. Men and women everyhere are carrying their lunch. They have awakened to the realization of their power.

Young girls who formerly filled up at noon on pastry and sweets to the detriment of their health are casting their false pride aside and taking lunch boxes from home filled with wholesome food. They no longer care whether others criticise them for it.

MANY FIRMS AID MOVE.

Many large firms are realising more and more the necessity of placing rooms at the disposal of their employes for a proper enjoyment of the noon-day lunches from home. Among the Boston business firms that now furnish their workers with proper quarters in which to eat their lunches are Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, United Drug Company, Thomas G. Plant Shoe Company, American Can Company of South Boston, Kidder, Peabody & Co. and several other leading concerns.

Have you joined the movement? If not, now's the time! Help force the prices in Boston restaurants to a fair level! If you continue to be robbed it's your own fault. Pack your lunch every morning for the noonday meal.

Ponzi has asked permission to attend the examinations which as usual will be held in the Federal Building.

MALDEN WARS ON BAY STATE

Mayor Kimball Wants Eastern Trolleys Ousted and 'L' Service Substituted

Mayor Kimball of Malden has written to the Legislature asking that legislation be enacted which will enable Malden to revoke the franchises of the Massachusetts Eastern Railway and establish a new suburban system under the direct management of the Boston Elevated.

The Mayor submitted the letter, which he dispatched to the Legislature, to the Malden Board of Aldermen. Kimball charges that owing to the wretched service provided his city, the patience of the citizens is exhausted and they are unwilling to longer tolerate the acts of the railway trustees, who, it is charged, have refused to co-operate with Malden city officials.

Mayor Kimball suggests the establishment of one big metropolitan zone furnishing service under the control of the Boston Elevated.

Lawrence and Methuen Protest One-Man Cars

Lawrence, Sept. 22. — Protests against the operation of one-man cars were made in this city and in Methuen.

Officials of the Lawrence branch of the Street Railway Men's Union appeared before the Lawrence City Council and charged that the poor service was due chiefly to one-man cars.

Mayor White expressed himself as personally opposed to one-man cars and said he was ready to support a move for motor buses if the operators could guarantee better service at cheaper rates. The Mayor said he thought that employes were in a measure contributing to poor service by "loafing on the job."

The council refused to concur with the action of officials of Methuen, Andover and Lawrence who voted in favor of removing one-man cars, but it decided that a meeting of the railway officials and employes should be held with the Lawrence councillors at once.

Five hundred residents of Andover, North Andover and Methuen attended the meeting at Methuen City Hall. They unanimously demanded the removal of one-man cars, which speakers derisively referred to as "cooties."

$3,000 COLLECTED FOR LONGSHOREMEN'S FAMILIES

At a meeting of Irish societies and representatives of labor organizations of Roxbury in Dudley Hall to protest against the handling of British goods in America, it was reported that nearly $3,000 had been collected toward the fund to assist the families of the longshoremen who are still on strike at the Hoosac Tunnel docks, in behalf of the Irish cause.

The meeting was presided over by Timothy Donovan, president of the Boston Gaelic School.

ONSET SWEPT BY $75,000 FIRE

Hosemen Hampered by Old Apparatus in Blaze at Independence Point

Onset, Sept. 22.—Damage estimated at $75,000 resulted when fire swept Independence Point, destroying six Summer cottages and two private garages and threatening two score of costly dwellings.

Volunteer firemen, aided by three Buzzards Bay hosemen on Sagamore, extinguished fires on the roofs of more than thirty-five houses. All the cottages, save one, were occupied. It is believed that the damage is fully covered by insurance.

The centre of the blaze was confined to the square on Second and Third avenues, although tongues of the flame shot across to houses in the surrounding area.

Although the firemen of Onset, Wareham and Middleboro made every effort to halt the rapidly spreading flames, they were sorely handicapped by old-fashioned reel fire fighting equipment and low water pressure. This apparatus was so ineffective that the firemen were forced to abandon the fight to save the blazing dwellings and devote their efforts to-ward saving the surrounding houses, which were fast igniting.

George Rowe, father of W. G. Rowe, former city solicitor of Brockton, was badly burned about the face and arms. Several others received minor burns.

LINDSAY LOSES SUIT AGAINST MEDICINE BOARD

Willard M. Lindsay's equity suit in the Federal building to compel the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Medicine to grant him the right to practice medicine has just been dismissed by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, who heard the case with Judge George Bingham of the United States Circuit Court and Judge James M. Morton, Jr., of the United States District Court. Justice Holmes wrote the opinion, Judges Bingham and Morton concurring.

Captain Barred From Flight to Moon

Worcester, Sept. 22. — There isn't a chance for Captain Charles N. Fitzgerald of New York's police force to take a trip on the "moon-going" rocket of Professor Goddard of Clark University. Reason—the rocket weighs but six pounds.

Professor Goddard stated in an interview today that he desires to see the result of his idea by experimenting with a small rocket before considering the possibility of a larger rocket which might carry a person.

Captain Fitzgerald declares that he wants to be the first man to attempt the trip to the moon, so as to say "hello" to the gentleman on that planet. Captain Fitzgerald stipulates, however, that a few of his mechanical ideas be installed on the Goddard rocket. These ideas include a colossal nose on the rocket which would throw Captain Fitzgerald and parachute clear of the rocket in case of accident.

Professor Goddard remarked today: "If there was less volunteering and more support I could get about much faster than I am at present."

He expects to have his trial rocket completed within a month and will then give it a test on a large field near Worcester. The test will be open to the public.

BARE MEXICAN REVOLT PLOT

Threats to Overthrow Present Government Contained in Seized Letters

By Universal Service.

Mexico City, Sept. 22—A plot by former supporters of President Carranza to overthrow the De La Huerta Obregon government is said to have been discovered, Government sources today predicted many arrests would take place in the near future.

The plot is said to have been discovered by the seizure of letters from Ignacio Bonillas, right hand man of President Carranza, in the deceased chief executive's cabinet, who was Carranza's choice to succeed him to the presidency.

These letters are said to have been taken from Bonillas at San Antonio and to tell of a counter-revolution planned in the State of Chiapas. They were addressed to the bishops of Chiapas and Linares, and asked for $50,000 from each to aid the conspiracy.

GIRL FILES CHARGES IN $100,000 LOVE SUIT

Ella Peters of Boston, in her $100,000 suit against William M. Campbell of Washington Court House, O., for alleged breach of promise to marry, has filed specifications in the Suffolk Superior Court of his alleged matrimonial promises.

The specifications are that the plaintiff and defendant mutually promised to marry and the promise was made at No. 2 West Eagle street, East Boston, on May 7, 1915.

Jays

TEMPLE PLACE ELEVEN BOSTON, MASS.

Our Patrons Profit Because We Waited

THE HOUSE OF JAYS has been breaking shopkeeping precedent for two months or more by declining to buy very far ahead. Our assemblage of select things-to-wear has been ample without being too abundant.

Now the benefits are being reaped. As doubtless you know, the prices we have to pay today are much less than two months ago. Therefore, since we are not overstocked, we are in position to get the best at smallest prices. The new things are streaming in!

In this advantage our patrons share fully. They now find full range of choice, with prices even lower than the usual Jays prices, low as they are.

We are abundantly provided to meet your most exacting needs in DRESSES, SUITS, COATS, SKIRTS, BLOUSES, SWEATERS—all at JAYS ECONOMIES.

INCIDENTALLY, assuming that you are interested in what we sell, it has occurred to us that you may be interested in THE SELLING OF IT—put us in touch with saleswomen of ability up to our standards.

SOCIALISTS ARE AGAIN OUSTED

Three Refused Assembly Seats in New York and Two Resign as Protest

is judgment on the 90 members voting for this unconstitutional action," Assemblyman Dewitt said. "I refuse, Mr. Speaker, to sit in a body so un-American as to take the action just accomplished."

CONDEMNS PROCEEDING.

Immediately after the Assembly had taken action on the Socialists, Assemblyman Martin McCue, Democrat, moved to reconsider the vote on the three ousted Socialists on the ground that if two Socialists were innocent, all must be innocent.

"This is the most ridiculous proceeding ever accomplished in a legislative body," McCue said.

The expressed reason for the balloting against Waldman, Classens and Solomon was that they were the only Assemblymen charged with personal disloyalty last Winter. The charges were never proved.

Asked to plead disloyalty, Louis Waldman said he would, but only as Washington pleaded disloyalty to the King, and as Lincoln pleaded to the slave oligarchy.

"I do not rise to make any apology for the socialist party," said Waldman, "nor do I rise to defend my principles before this body. The people are the sovereign rulers of this country, and the people by their votes have decreed that we represent them in the halls of this assembly.

COMMON SENSE PLEA.

"I came here at the command of the people of my district to legislate on housing and hope there is enough loyalty, patriotism and common sense in this body to permit me to fulfill my duties."

The Judiciary Committee voted, seven to six, in favor of the ouster and reported back Assemblyman Colletta's blanket ouster motion. This motion called for electing all five.

Strong support came to the Socialists fighting for their seats from New York city Republicans. Assemblymen Bernard Ullman and Joseph Steinberg protested strongly against the ouster movement and called their fellow-Assemblymen names.

Ullman quoted the Republican party's national platform, and pointed to parts of a speech by Senator Harding in which he lionized free speech and representative government.

An attempt was made to put the final vote off till Thursday on account of the Jewish new year, but this was overruled by Speaker Sweet.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT THROTTLES IRISH NEWS

"News of the killing and robbing of Irish men, women and children is kept from the English public," says Desmond McCarthy in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser. "The British government edits the situation," he states further. SHOE STRIKE IN DEADLOCK

Haverhill Manufacturers Threaten to Close Factories if Workers Refuse to Return

That a shut-down of all the factories in the city is inevitable as a result of the controversy none will gainsay. A statement given out by the manufacturers reads in part:

"The manufacturers who belong to the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association, producing ninety per cent. of Haverhill shoes, have been ready for days to sign the peace pact with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union and do their share toward the resumption of work in their factories. They are anxious to have the peace pact signed and operative, believing that it will open the way to peaceful, prosperous years for Haverhill.

BLAME UNION AGENTS.

"The manufacturers are certain that business can be restored for their operatives at wages that no one will declare anything but fair and just. The delay of the union agents is all that is keeping operatives from taking their places at their benches.

"A rumor has gained wide circulation that acceptance of the peace pact would result in a general cut in wages. This is untrue, because the question of wages will be decided on an equitable and fair basis by the wage board. There is absolutely no truth in the rumors that the manufacturers propose to arrange wage reductions.

"It is time for that sort of team work that will keep Haverhill business in Haverhill. The peace pact will pave the way."

SEEK INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Joseph C. Goyette, general agent of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, denies statements made by the manufacturers that the business agents of the union were causing the delay in returning the shoe workers to their benches.

"Such statements are untrue," said Goyette. "The agents have tried time and again to get a working agreement in such form as to be acceptable to the workers whom they represent. We told the manufacturers that the workers would not accept any pact unless the prices were reestablished. The only purpose in proposing the pact was to assure industrial peace during the life of the agreement after it was signed."

LYNN SHOE EMPLOYERS MAKE PLEA FOR PEACE

The Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association, in a statement signed by Albion Bartlett, president, calls on members of the lasters, packing room and McKay stitchers' unions to recognize fairly the difficulties facing manufacturers by contiguing under a peace agreement as a means of forestalling the possibility of a strike.

FIND MYSTERIOUS BULLET IN ARLINGTON HOME

An investigation is being made by the Arlington police relative to a mysterious bullet found in the wall in the den at the residence of Mrs. William M. Brown, at No. 16 Marion road, that town. It is evident that the shot entered the room through an open window while the family was away. No trace of the person who fired the shot has been found.

Did the Children Get As Much From Their Vacation as They Should Have?

Sometimes the re-opening of school finds many children below normal weight, with less strength than they should have, and really unable to stand the strain imposed by study.

This is the time when Father John's Medicine will prove most effective for them. The actual food elements which it contains are exactly what nature has provided to rebuild health and strength. This rebuilding food is so skilfully prepared by the scientific process of compounding the prescription for Father John's Medicine that it is quickly and easily taken up by a weakened system and the results are promptly evident in the increased weight and steadily gaining strength which the child shows under the treatment which Father John's Medicine affords.

For more than sixty years Father John's medicine has been successfully used in thousands of homes as a standard medicine for all the family. It is guaranteed free from alcohol and dangerous drugs of any kind.—Advertisement.

America's most celebrated boy

A real American boy, full of merriment and mischief, Johnny Jones has won nation-wide fame as "Edgar," in the series of stories written by Booth Tarkington for the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Johnny will be twelve in November of this year. He had already appeared in many productions before this final series that made him America's most celebrated boy. Johnny lives at 4211 Belmora Ave., Hollywood, California. His greatest ambition just now is to be a civil engineer.

Home life of Johnny Jones, 12-year-old screen star, described by his father. Mr. Jones gives his ideas on bathing and health

WHEN he was only six months old, Johnny Jones made his first appearance on the stage. To-day at the age of 12, he has already starred in six big motion pictures.

As "Edgar," the jolly, red-blooded boy in Booth Tarkington's famous films, he has captured the hearts of Americans in all parts of the country.

"Johnny is always throwing a lariat or riding a horse when he's not working," said Mr. Edward Jones, his father. "And he has his tutor to study with in addition to acting for the camera. Mrs. Jones and I feel that the real secret of his success lies in his splendid vitality.

"As a family we have always followed the simple rules of health. Long ago, for instance, we learned the importance of correct bathing and care of the skin. We all use Lifebuoy Health Soap because its fine lather leaves the skin glowing as no other soap can."

Like this well-known family, two million others in the United States have found out that correct bathing with Lifebuoy plays a real part in building health. Its quick, generous lather and mild antiseptic keep the entire skin always active and stimulated.

Doctors have found that a "lazy," inactive skin frequently makes trouble for the entire body.

How a "lazy" skin causes discomfort and lowered vitality

Some people are always sneezing in draughts and catching cold—others are forever complaining of the heat in summer.

These two troubles—and many others—are often the result of a "lazy," inactive skin.

The tiny muscles and glands of our skin relax and grow weak—just as the muscles of the body become flabby when they are not exercised.

We suffer too much from heat and cold with a "lazy" skin like this. It cannot do its full work in protecting the body from changes in temperature. We grow "tired out" more easily. In addition a "lazy" skin is much more likely to break out in rashes and eruptions.

Keep your skin active—glowing with health

Thousands of people have found a pleasant way to keep their skin always "on the job."

A bath in warm water with the rich, bubbling lather of Lifebuoy Health Soap—then a cold sponge-off and a vigorous rub-down—

Try this yourself and see how it leaves you "tingling" all over. It gives your skin just the right kind of exercise. That means a clearer, fresher complexion, too—the radiant, outdoor look that everyone admires.

Notice, too, the clean, wholesome odor of the rich Lifebuoy lather. It contains a special ingredient—a mild antiseptic that purifies and stimulates the skin. The odor tells you of this antiseptic—tells you why Lifebuoy is known as the Health Soap.

Start to-day to make every bath help build health for your whole body. Take a cake of Lifebuoy home with you. It is on sale at grocers, department and drug stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Ordinary Soap — Lifebuoy Health Soap

Work up the best possible lather in warm water with some ordinary soap. Then try the same experiment with Lifebuoy. You will find that Lifebuoy makes at least 50% more lather.

50% more lather than ordinary soap

Rich, generous lather—half again as much as with ordinary toilet soaps. That's the result of the Red Palm oils in Lifebuoy.

Try the simple test shown above. See for yourself that Lifebuoy forms at least 50% more lather.

Notice, too, the clean wholesome odor of rich Lifebuoy antiseptic. The generous lather carries this cleansing antiseptic right down into the pores of the skin. That is why Lifebuoy keeps your whole skin glowing with health.

For the face and hands

More than any other parts of the body, the face and hands are exposed to dirt and grime. They especially require a soap that forms a heavy creamy lather, which will loosen the dirt, and carry it away.

Try Lifebuoy the next time you wash your face and hands. Notice how much cleaner—how much cooler the rich Lifebuoy lather makes them feel than ever before.

Watch your skin improve

$200 in prizes for letters from Lifebuoy users

Every day we are hearing from more and more Lifebuoy users who are doing remarkable and unusual things. If you or your family are among the 2,000,000 users of Lifebuoy, and have won a prize, or done something interesting, write us a letter describing it and telling why you like Lifebuoy.

We will award prizes of $100.00, $75.00 and $25.00 for the three best letters. Only condition is that you must have been a Lifebuoy user before August 10th, the first day of this contest. Mail your letter on or before Sept. 30 to Dept. A-13, Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Rocking Chairs Urged for Good Health

By Universal Service.

Paris, Sept. 22.—To be healthy, one should sit only in rocking chairs, according to a report made to the Academy of Science, in Paris, by Dr. M. H. Chadannet, prominent psychologist.

"In a rocking chair the head and the spinal column are always kept in a normal position. This ensures proper breathing, which, in turn, ensures health," he says.

French people now have found the hidden reason for the American's physical strength. Since Bourget characterized Americans as a "people who use rocking chairs so as to have the illusion of movement even when they sit still," the French have rather looked down on that special brand of furniture. But the Academy of Science report makes them change their mind.

PICKFORDS CANNOT BUY HAPPINESS WITH ALL THEIR MONEY

A remarkable story of the trail of sorrow that followed this famous movie family is printed in the next (September 26) Boston Sunday Advertiser. Mary, Lottie and Jack—all have had their marital troubles, leading to divorce or worse. In recent years all three have had more money to buy happiness than they could possibly spend, but—read the story.

COLD WEATHER CLOSES NEWBURYPORT H. S.

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 22. — No sessions of the high school were held yesterday on account of the dampness and cold in the building. No coal had been put in, and the weather made it unsafe to keep the pupils in the building, as the thermometer registered 55 degrees.

Vermont Senator Gets Biggest Vote Since '96

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 22.—Senator W. P. Dillingham, in the primaries of last Tuesday, received the largest vote ever cast for a single Republican candidate in Vermont, save one, which was Josiah Grout, when he was elected Governor in 1894. Senator Dillingham received 22,666 according to the official figures and Mr. Grout received 23,426.

For Governor Frank W. Ages obtained 12,844; F. H. Babbitt, 21,412; James Harrison, 22,756; C. H. Emery, 17,455. Harry Black for Secretary of State led the state ticket with 45,881; Walter Scott, State Treasurer, obtained 44,140; Benjamin Gates, auditor, 44,212; Abram Foote, Lieutenant-Governor, 43,776; P. C. Archibald, Attorney-General, 43,440. The total vote cast was 80,475.

Fred C. Martin, Democratic candidate for Governor, obtained 5,406 and led his ticket.

FOCH THANKS K. OF C. AND WANTS TO PAY CALL

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, thanking the Knights of Columbus for their aid during the war and the recent Lafayette statue they unveiled in Metz, has cabled Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, reaffirming his desire to visit the United States.

"I wish to express my most cordial thanks for the aid and example given by the Knights of Columbus, and I sincerely hope to see your work in America with my own eyes—Ferdinand Foch," the telegram read.

Women of Weymouth to Vote in Factory

Weymouth women are "all het up." Unprepared for woman suffrage, Weymouth finds herself without a town hall and who can expect a woman voter to go to a meeting in an iron foundry and stand up for three of four hours and listen to a mere man," in the position of moderator, read off the articles?

Weymouth's town hall was destroyed by fire several years ago and has never been rebuilt. The last town meeting was held in the old iron foundry at East Weymouth because there was no other building available which could accommodate all the voters. They were forced to stand throughout the evening. It is predicted that a hall will be erected in the near future.

CALL RED CROSS CONFERENCE

Delegates from New England Chapters to Discuss New Auxiliary Service

Delegates from the chapters in the territory of the New England Division of the American Red Cross meet in Boston tomorrow for an important conference on the new auxiliary service, which is being organized in all chapters and branches of the organization throughout the country.

Mrs. August Belmont, a member of the executive committee of the American National Red Cross and the moving spirit in the creation of the auxiliary service, will deliver the only address, presenting to the chapter representatives the purposes and plans for the new service.

The conference will be held under the auspices of the New England Division at the Copley-Plaza Hotel. There will be an informal executive meeting between the officers and department heads of New England Division headquarters and the delegates. Mrs. Belmont and the chapter delegates will be the guests of the division officers at a luncheon.

The conference on auxiliary service will be presided over by Arthur G. Hotch, division manager, who will introduce Mrs. Belmont. This meeting will not open to the public.

The primary purpose of the auxiliary service is, in brief, to bring back into the organization and so provide opportunity for service to as many of the eight million women who served under the Red Cross during the war as desire to have part in the now established and rapidly increasing peace-time activities of the organization. All the volunteer work of women will be centered in the new Department of Auxiliary Service.

BABY DROWNS WHILE WADING IN POOL

Framingham, Sept. 22.—Charlotte McNeil, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McNeil of Central street, Saxonville, was drowned while wading in a shallow pool in the Sudbury river. Mrs. McNeil made a futile effort to save the child when notified of the accident.

Ask American to Find Yeoman for Jackies

This jolly bunch of sailors on the U. S. S. Graham, shown reading a Boston American, need a yeoman shipmate.

Wanted: a yeoman.

Uncle Sam's torpedo boat destroyer the U. S. S. Graham needs a clerk. Her crew has appealed to the Boston American to find one.

As an extra inducement to enlist, the crew say that the U. S. S. Graham, now at Newport, is one of the most efficient ships in the Navy and her crew are a snappy, contented lot of blue-jackets. Every man has the utmost pride in his ship and Captain Charles C. Soule, U. S. N., whose home is in Boston, says that a better ship's company never sailed the seas.

A large percentage of her officers and crew come from Boston and the vicinity. The Graham is also expected to go to European waters, where all active ships make their Winter cruise. So there is bound to be an opportunity to see various parts of the world.

The yeoman in charge of the Graham is about to be retired with a life pension of two-thirds pay. Yeomen are clerks of the navy. Without them pay day may be delayed and the ship's records get far behind.

With these recommendations there ought to be an opening, and here is a chance.

JONES BILL BIG AID TO BRITAIN

English Builder Says Congress Has Wrecked Opportunity of American Merchant Marine

By SIR EDWARD MACKAY EDGAR

Copyright, 1920, By Universal Service.

London, Sept. 22.—As a British shipbuilder I am delighted with the Jones bill. Legislation of that kind is the best ally that British shipping could have. The American Senator deserves a vote of thanks from the entire shipping community of this country.

Coupled with the name of Admiral Benson, Senator Jones will go down in history as one of the saviours of the British merchant marine and as one of the wreckers of the American competition. The curious thing is that the Americans, preeminently a business people, should always be so excessively unhappy in their political treatment of business questions.

BUNGLED BY CONGRESS.

If I have never wavered in my faith in British ability to meet American rivalry, even when most of the odds favor America, it is because I can rely on the American Congress to trip up the American merchant, manufacturer, banker or shipowner at every opportunity.

If Congress had a high standard of knowledge of commercial statesmanship instead of the lowest in the world, America would today own the earth. As it is Europe is saved by the unhesitating consistency with which Washington, whenever confronted with a big commercial problem, always contrives to bungle it.

The Jones bill belongs to the same order of legislative stupidity that has muddled the currency, tariff and trust problems, that has brought the American railroads to a state of semi-bankruptcy, has fastened upon the United States a system of taxation that combines the evils of all other systems and was responsible for that masterpiece of congressional myopia—the Sherman anti-trust act.

Senator Jones is a first rate specimen of the type of American lawmaker from whom American commerce and all American enterprise has suffered the tortures of the damned. I am sincerely sorry for American shipowners.

Whether they have striven since the Civil War to recreate the American merchant marine. Almost every effort has been thwarted by sheer bad statesmanship from Washington.

PLAN BOYCOTT OF U. S. PORTS.

Now, thanks to the war, a new splendid merchant fleet is actually in existence. But no sooner than it began to find itself Senator Jones, with the damnablest good intentions, proceeds to torpedo it.

Already the Scandinavian countries are meditating on joint action against the discriminatory clauses in the bill. The Holt line has arranged to make British Columbia its base, instead of the American Pacific coast. The Japanese are preparing to hit back. On all sides steps are being taken to either boycott American ports or retaliate in kind.

The bill restricts navigation to the worst spirit of the eighteenth century jealousy at just the time when every country, and most of all America, needs unhampered freedom of the seas and the utmost facilities of unhampered trade.

The longer the revision of the Jones bill is delayed the more American shipping will suffer and the easier it will be for England to regain the ground she had to yield during the war.

AUTO UPSET KILLS PROHIBITION AGENT

Stockton, Calif., Sept. 22.—Loren A. Handley, Federal Prohibition Agent for California, was killed when an automobile in which he was a passenger overturned near here. Handley's neck was broken, but the other occupants of the car escaped with minor injuries. The victim of the accident was a graduate of Princeton University with the class of 1904.

IOWA COAL MINERS REJECT WAGE SCALE

Des Moines, Sept. 22.—A wage contract agreed upon by a committee representing the United Mine Workers in the Iowa districts and representatives of the Iowa Coal Operators' Association has been rejected by the coal miners in the Iowa mining districts.

Only 80 Strikes in U. S. in Past Six Months

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—A marked decrease in the number of strikes in the United States during the first six months of this year as compared to the corresponding period of last year is reported by the mediation division of the Department of Labor.

During the first half of 1920 there were eighty strikes, 106 threatened strikes which did not reach the strike stage, three walkouts and ten lockouts reported to the department for settlement, while in the same period of 1919 there were 209 strikes, 204 threatened strikes, thirty-two lockouts and five walkouts.

CATCH ALLEGED THIEF AFTER PISTOL DUEL

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Charles O'Malley, accused of attempting to rob the Illinois Pawners' Society Bank, forfeited $21,000 bonds by defaulting when he was called to answer the charge. He was arrested after a pistol duel with Paul Korshak, proprietor of the pawnshop.

SEEKS $50,000 FOR LOST LOVE

Boston Reader Charges Col. French of Maine Refused to Wed Her

Portland, Me., Sept. 22.—Charges that Colonel Milton H. French, a member of the staff of former Governor E. C. Burleigh of Maine, refused to marry her after an alleged ardent courtship, was offered by counsel for Mrs. Genevieve Howard of Boston, a Shakespearian reader, at the trial of her $50,000 breach of promise suit in court here.

Mrs. Howard, Wallace D. Merrill, Mrs. A. M Hill, Mrs. Annie Stuart and Stanley Howard were sworn as witnesses. Mrs. Howard took the stand during the day, and some of the letters which Colonel French is alleged to have written to Mrs. Howard were read.

Attorney Burnett, for Mrs. Howard, in his opening, claimed that Mrs. Howard met Col. French at the Hotel Oxford, Boston, where she resides, and that Col. French became an ardent admirer.

Later, he said, Col. French visited the plaintiff at her summer house at Provincetown in 1918, and that they went about together. It is alleged that Col. French urged changes in the house there.

According to Attorney Burnett, Mrs. Howard then went into the army during the war, and Mrs. Howard told the colonel that she thought it best they be married at once.

Col. French, it is alleged, made it apparent to Mrs. Howard that he never loved her, never intended to marry her, and would not marry her; that he simply wanted to be friendly.

WAR RISK BUREAU GIVES HERO WOODEN LEG, CUTS ALLOWANCE

The United States may have carried on its World War activities with a lavish hand, but the government is beginning to economize in at least one respect, namely, its financial treatment of disabled veterans.

What would you consider one of your legs worth? Rather, if you lost it through no fault of your own, what would you consider a just compensation?

Norman D. Mackay, No. 111 Winthrop street, Dorchester, did not have to decide that question. The government, through its War Risk Bureau, did it for him.

Mackay had two sound legs when he went overseas. He lost the left one fighting with the 104th Infantry, 26th Division, around Verdun. Now he is at the Parker Hill Hospital. Recently his compensation was reduced from $86 to $63 a month.

Within the past month or so his case reached the proper officials in Washington. They decided that Mackay should be supplied with an artificial limb. It was also decided that he should be charged for that service at the rate of $17 a month—55 cents a day—the same to be deducted from his monthly allowance. This week the Y. D. veteran received the following letter from the War Risk Bureau—

Mr. Norman D. Mackay,
111 Winthrop street,
Dorchester.

Dear Mr. Mackay:

Referring to your inquiry through the representative of the Bureau at Boston, Mass., please be advised that the records of this bureau disclose that a permanent artificial leg has been supplied you and the chief medical adviser rendered a decision to the effect that your disability should now be rated as $3 per cent., permanent partial, which will continue as long as you live, hence the reason that compensation has been decreased to $63 per month.

By authority of the Director,
Very truly yours,
R. H. Hallett,
Assistant Director.

Another wounded veteran at Parker Hill is John Louis Kelly, of No. 3 Appleton street, Arlington Heights. Private Kelly did outpost duty for his artillery regiment in France. In addition to being gassed, he said, he received the following wounds: Shot through the foot, right ankle and right knee, two pieces of shrapnel in the right hip and a soft nosed bullet in the left hand, which makes it necessary for him to still carry that hand in a sling. He has been notified by the War Risk Bureau that his compensation had been fixed at $24 a month.

One of the cases causing most concern to Red Cross workers at the hospital is that of Joseph Berger, of No. 36 Allen street, Boston. Berger was injured early in the war at Ft. Wright, N. Y., the result of heavy lifting. He is suffering from spinal trouble, and since his admission to the hospital has spent part of the time in a plaster cast.

For more than two years and a half this ex-soldier has been striving to get some kind of compensation but thus far without success. His first claim was submitted in January, 1918. Nothing was heard from that, he said, and in July of this year he submitted another. The papers were lost and the local branch of the Red Cross has submitted a third set to Washington for Berger.

Elias J. Elitior, another veteran at the hospital, has been trying since last March to have his claim approved by the War Risk Bureau. The only replies to his letters, he said, have been requests for "further evidence."

John Carnegie, No. 114 Dorrance street, Providence, who recently was sent to the Parker Hill Hospital for treatment has had his claim for disability pending with the government more than a year. He died it in August, 1918.

Wendell A. Clouch of somerville, another veteran, who lost a leg in France, and the story of whose petition from $125 to $175 a month allowance was published in the Boston American, has received notice from the War Risk Bureau that his compensation had been increased to $80 a month, with the probability of further award upon receipt of birth certificate of his only child.

R. E. NORTHWAY
Designer of the Famous Northway Motors
Chief Engineer of the Northway Motors Corporation

Northway Achievements

R. E. Northway, Chief Engineer of the Northway Motors Corporation—designer of the new, super-powerful, super-efficient Northway Motor and Northway Truck—is recognized as one of the World's greatest automotive engineers and authorities on gas engine design and construction.

Mr. Northway was born at Orwell, Ohio, in 1872. From his early youth he inclined to mechanical pursuits and his first connection found him constructing marine motors at the Phoenix Iron Works, Ashtabula, Ohio. Since that time his mechanical ability and inventive genius have taken him step by step to the pinnacle of his profession.

In the period between 1902 and 1904, while connected with Dodge Bros. at Detroit, Mr. Northway developed for them the first Ford motor.

In 1904 he designed and built the first overhead valve type motor for commercial purposes, and a little later designed and manufactured the Northway Unit Power Plant, one of the first Unit Power Plants to be used in the automotive industry.

The new Northway motor, which is the power unit of the Northway truck, is Mr. Northway's latest and greatest achievement.

Mr. Northway is the original Designer of the famous Northway motor used in many of the best known makes of cars.

In the powerful, handsome Northway Truck Mr. Northway offers you the culminating achievement of his life's work.

THE NORTHWAY TRUCK IS THE MASTER WORK OF A MASTER WORKMAN.

LEAGUE TO MAKE WORLD 'DRY'

Daniels Tells International Congress Pact Is "Rainbow of Hope"

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Mexico under the Presidency of General Obregon, will become bone dry and will be the next nation to banish liquor by constitutional amendment, according to a report delivered by Mexican delegates to the fifteenth international congress against alcoholism at its opening session here.

Another feature of the opening session was a declaration by Secretary of the Navy Daniels that the League of Nations will operate to bring world prohibition and that in consequence the covenant was "the rainbow of hope for all nations."

The Mexican delegates asserted that President Obregon, acting President De La Huerta, and all high officials of the present Mexican regime are committed to establishment of prohibition throughout Mexico as soon as possible. Many delegates testified that the degraded condition of the Mexican people, his turbulence, banditry and aversions to work are well traceable to the fact that he is a heavy drinker.

"Take this poison away from the person," declared one delegate. "This poison that was brought to the Mexican Indian first by the white man, and he will become in an astonishingly short time an upstanding decent citizen and an efficient worker."

COLBY ASKS DISMISSAL OF SUFFRAGE ACTION

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Secretary of State Colby has applied to the District Court of Appeals for dismissal of the action brought against him by Charles S. Fairchild of the American Constitutional League to restrain him from proclaiming the ratification of the suffrage amendment. The plea for dismissal is based on the fact that the action sought to be prevented has been performed.

WOMAN MADE ASSISTANT REGISTRAR IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Bertha C. Moore, for many years an employe of the Registry of Deeds, has just been appointed second assistant registrar of deeds by Registrar Daniel Kent. Mrs. Moore is the first woman in Worcester to be given a political appointment since the passage of the suffrage amendment. The position carries a salary of $2,000 a year and is a new office, made possible by act of the last Legislature.

MOTOR NEWS and NOTES

MOTOR FEATURE OF MARMON

New Series of Cars Include Innovations in Workmanship and Smart Styles

Frank E. Wing, who has distributed the Marmon exclusively for seventeen years in New England, has announced the 1921 series of this make.

Mr. Wing says: "Following closely a design that is stabilized, the Norlyke & Marmon Company has evolved a wonderful power plant without degreeing materially from the principle of all model 34 motors. They have continued with little change and a few refinements, the noted light-weight sturdy chassis, with its accordion-frame.

MOTOR PASSES TESTS.

"The Norlyke & Marmon organization is exceptionally busy standardizing their new methods of manufacture. The new motor has passed all the tests. The high efficiency motor of the same bore and stroke surpassed the expectation of the engineering department. It is a long live motor of the continuous service, with new standards of power, endurance and longevity.

"In performance, the new high efficiency motor demonstrates its right to its name. At 2400 revolutions per minute it develops 85 horse power in acceleration and flexibility it offers a new type of fluid power and one that adds greatly to the driver's ease and convenience. It is an ideal power plant to drive in traffic where pick-up is absolutely essential. On hills and through regions with poor roads, the steady pulling power of this high efficiency motor demonstrates unusual superiority.

HAS MANY STYLES.

"A crank shaft of unusual size—the main bearings being 2¾ inches in diameter—of the same alloy steel as used in Liberty engine crank shafts is balanced in static and running tests. Bearings are fitted without scraping. There are no 'rough spots' through the range of speed—the steady pulling power of this high efficiency motor demonstrates unusual superiority.

"The use of a multiple disc clutch of the very dry plate type gives smoothness of operation. It is entirely enclosed, cannot be affected by dust oil or water and is easily operated.

"The body styles include among the open models a seven-passenger touring car, a 4-passenger chummy roadster and a 4-passenger touring car with four doors. Among the inclosed car types are the coupe, the four and seven-passenger sedan, a town car with seats for five in the tonneau, and the standard seven-passenger limousine."

SHANKS TO INSPECT FORT ETHAN ALLEN

Major-General D. C. Shanks, accompanied by Captain Charles T. Estes, will make an inspection of Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt., Monday, leaving Boston for that post Sunday evening. They will call upon the Governor of Vermont and his staff on Tuesday and then return to Boston.

The general will start for Provincetown Thursday, where he will witness the firing of the railroad artillery. He will make an address this evening before the Army and Navy Club, Park Square.

U. S. MOUNTED SERVICE CUP CONTEST ARRANGED

The endurance test for the United States Army mounted service cup will be competed for this year in a ride from Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt., to Camp Devens, October 11-15. The total distance to be covered will be about 300 miles and all participants will ride sixty miles daily for every one of the five successive days, irrespective of weather conditions.

The prescribed route and the stopping places shall be the same for all contestants.

Middlesex Superior Court

According to Mike Kalloy of Maynard, he and Zonia Saisatrowsiez of Maynard agreed to marry each other. Then Zonia, it is alleged, changed her mind and Mike has brought a suit for $2,000 against her in the Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge, alleging breach of promise.

Mike Zolemito of Marlboro has been sued for $5,000 by Edith Woodman of Gloucester, who alleges that on May 30 while riding in an automobile on Main street, Marlboro, she was injured when the defendant's car collided with the one she was in. Ayling E. Woodman of Gloucester sues the defendant for $1,000 for the damage done to his machine in the collision.

Dominic Molowsky of Boston has been sued for $2,500 by Marie Fudgeo of Cambridge, who alleges that on May 31 while walking near the corner of Cambridge and Second streets, she was struck by the defendant's car and injured.

Theodore Thoeges of Lowell, has been sued for $5,000 by John Ferullo of Woburn, who alleges that on June 14 he was struck by the defendant's automobile and injured.

The Everett Distilling Company has been sued for $5,000 by Ardmont Lewandoni of Chelsea, a minor, who sues through his father, Walter Lewandowville alleges that on April 6 while in Sudbury square, Chelsea, he was struck by an automobile owned by the defendant and was injured.

The Boston Elevated has been sued for $2,500 by Rebecca Mendelson of Malden. She alleges that on December 31, 1919, while on a subway train, she was injured owing to negligence on the part of the company.

Fall Season Ideal for Auto Tourists

The fall touring season is on. Visitors from all parts of the country will be seen motoring through the beautiful New England drives. Hundreds of motorists are planning trips to the White Mountains in closed cars, when nature is more beautiful than in the Summer months.

Don't forget that there is another holiday coming soon, Columbus Day, October 12, this year is on a Tuesday. That will allow a lot of people to go away Saturday, and travel Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Motorists planning a holiday trip should make reservations now in order to be sure of accommodations. Last year many hotel people did not realize the possibilities of this holiday, and were closed when hundreds of tourists flocked to their places for accommodations. Those who remained open reaped a harvest, but they could not handle everybody, and consequently many motorists had to spend the nights in their cars.

ADAMS PLANS MEMORIAL TO SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Adams, Sept. 22.—Plans for a suitable memorial to the memory of Susan B. Anthony, a native of Adams and pioneer of federal suffrage for women will be considered at a patriotic memorial service to be held in the Old Quincy meeting house here early next month. It is probable that the old homestead on the West road, where Miss Anthony was born, will be purchased as a memorial.

50 PER CENT. OF BABIES ARE DYING IN FRANCE

By Universal Service.

Paris, Sept. 22.—Infant mortality has reached an amazing figure in France since the war ended. In Paris it is 50 per cent.

Five hundred and nine out of every thousand babies born in France die, as contrasted with 8 per cent in England, and 4 per cent in New Zealand, which is said to have the best record.

CREEL TO HELP COX AFTER SEEING WILSON

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—George Creel, head of the government bureau of public information during the war, held a conference with President Wilson at the White House and at its conclusion he announced his intention of getting "up to his ears" in the campaign to elect Governor Cox. Mr. Creel was with the President almost an hour.

NASH PERFECT FOR LONG TRIPS

Tourist Party Travel 6,000 Miles in Car Without Stopping for Repairs

The dependability of the present-day automobile is brought home during the Summer and Fall touring seasons to thousands of motor car owners in trips that carry them in comfort and safety between points far distant.

Thus when H. J. Stevens, accompanied by Mrs. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dunham and Miss Gertrude Waltermier, pulled up in front of the administration building of the Nash Motors Company in Kenosha one day last week, the speedometer of their Nash Six showed six thousand miles of travel since July 1, when the party left home in New York.

Mr. Stevens, who is a railroad man, points out that the big lesson learned on their long tour, which thus far has taken them from New York to Yellowstone Park, with many detours was the absolute dependability of the well-built present-day automobile.

"From the hour we started our motor never missed a stroke," he said. "In fact we have had no troubles of any kind whatsoever. It has never been necessary to touch a wrench to the car. The riding comfort of the Nash Six is remarkable and I say this, having in mind certain roads the least said about which, the better."

AUTO SAFETY HINTS ISSUED BY GOODWIN

Thousands of "vest pocket" booklets containing hints to motorists that every owner and operator of motor vehicles should know are ready for distribution at the office of the registrar of motor vehicles at the State House.

The book was compiled by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, who has for years made a study of the laws governing automobiles and their operation.

Beside giving a long list of safety hints, the book informs the public how to avoid delays in getting licenses and plates; how to get a license; how to operate; speed warnings; the laws of the road; right of way; Metropolitan Park rules; hand signals for motorists, and penalties for infractions of the laws.

Open Theological School

The Boston University Theological School opened today with exercises in the Robinson Chapel at 10:30.

Electricity Solves Servant Problem

By Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 22.—Exit Mary Jane, the servant girl. It is true, too, that is, it soon will be, according to a preliminary announcement of the electrical exposition at Grand Central Palace on October 6, which states that a practically servantless household will be exhibited.

This exhibit will show that practically every phase of household work can be done by electricity, and all that is necessary is an occasional supervisory glance.

CORROSION BLOCKED IN MAC-LITE BATTERIES

Mr. MacNeill of the Farley-MacNeill Company says, "Raising the guarantee on our Mac-Lite Battery from one year to two years should prove to motorists that this product is everything we have claimed it to be. The success of the battery is due to the new methods of manufacture discovered by Mr. Wright, one of the best storage battery engineers in the country. A new method of treating the separators by electricity instead of chemicals is used which leaves them free from all organic matters.

"The Mac-Lite is manufactured with acid-tight, solid rubber terminal which helps in eliminate corrosion, that bugbear of battery troubles.

A branch office in the basement of our store at No. 105 Federal street is being used to demonstrate how the Mac-Lite is made and how it acts."

THREE WOMEN CAUGHT IN R. I. OPIUM RAID

Providence, Sept. 22.—Customs agents and agents of the Treasury Department swooped down upon the house at No. 136 Summer street here and found a well appointed "hop joint." They confiscated two large cans, which, they say, contained opium, and arrested Chin Lang, charged with having opium in his possession.

The officers also found two pipes, yen hooks and alcohol lamps. Three white women who were in the house at the time of the raid were released after being questioned. The opium seized is said to be valued at more than $500.

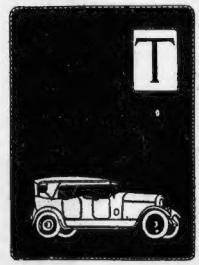
Wedded in Dorchester

Miss Bertha A. Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanders, of No. 24 Adamsdale road, Dorchester, was married to J. Allen Turbeville, a wholesale grocer of Little Rock, Arkansas. The Rev. Thomas Marr of Howes Unitarian Church, Broadway, South Boston, officiated.

EIGHTH OF A SERIES OF TIMELY DISCUSSIONS OF MOTOR CAR VALUES

What Is a Renewed MARMON 34?

How does it compare wit h a new car of like price?



HESE are questions being asked rather generally by wide-awake motorists who realize that a revision of values has taken place.

Men who formerly would think only in terms of a new car when contemplating a purchase, are now confronted by an alternative.

"I am about to buy a touring car," a man figures. "I want to pay from $1,000 to $3,250, so as to get a good car. Shall it be some new car or a Renewed Marmon 34?"

So many men have studied this question and decided in favor of the Renewed Marmon 34 that it is almost an obligation now—unless one buys blindly—to make a serious comparison.

Not "second-hand"—
not "overhauled"

THE Marmon Method of Renewal signifies a Marmon 34 made new again—brought back to where it eliminates your consideration of previous ownership and mileage—a car accompanied by a Certificate of Renewal which is synonymous with the sort of a Guarantee you receive in buying a new car.

A Renewed Marmon 34 must bring to you the assurance that you possess as fine a car as man makes—finer than most—a car you will be proud of, a car of great prestige—a car that brings you greater satisfaction than a new car of like price.

A Renewed Marmon 34 looks like new. It performs like new. It shows not a single compromise with new-car standards.

Every part is new or like new. There is replacement wherever necessary. To earn the Certificate of Renewal, the authorized Marmon Distributor must send us a complete report of all work done and the exact condition of the car upon renewal. We keep the records at the factory.

Only Authorized Marmon Distributors are equipped to renew our way. They have joined in this, the most advanced system yet conceived. He who purchases any Marmon 34 from other than an Authorized Marmon Distributor is not getting the genuine.

The way for the wise

THE Renewed Marmon 34 has come to market as a result of years of planning. It owes its success to those two fundamental principles advocated and put into effect by Marmon—Advanced Engineering and Stabilized Design.

A Marmon of the 34 Series is a Marmon always, whether new or Renewed, whether built in 1915 or today. Your investment is permanent.

Our Method of Renewal restores a Marmon 34 to new-like serviceability—all of which means a finer car for you at a lower price.

A comparison is simple. Visit an Authorized Marmon Distributor. Become acquainted with a Renewed Marmon 34. Then compare it to new cars of like price.

SOLDIER IS JAILED ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Lawrence, Sept. 22.—Alfred Proulx, a soldier stationed at Fisher's Island, was sentenced in Superior Court to serve a three-months' sentence at the house of correction on a serious charge involving Margaret Dean, aged 15, of Waterbury, Ct. He met the girl at Fisher's Island, where she had been employed during the Summer in a hotel.

BOSTON-LOWELL ROAD IS BEING IMPROVED

Work on reconstructing Massachusetts avenue, the main highway between Boston and Lowell, between Percy road and the State road, in Lexington, is progressing rapidly. The Middlesex & Boston Street Railway tracks have been raised considerably along part of the section being fixed, and here the avenue will be raised correspondingly.

SUFFRAGISTS IN VICTORY FETE

Governor and Mayor Review Parade of Women; Hold Meeting in Faneuil Hall

The Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association today held its victory ratification celebration. The fete marked the passing of the organization which has fought for fifty years to obtain the ballot for women. In its place stands the Massachusetts League of Women Voters already organized and active.

Hundreds of women gathered at Charles and Beacon streets, formed a line of march and led by Miss Sybil Appleton, carrying an American flag, paraded up Beacon street, to the State House where they were reviewed by Governor Coolidge. Thence to School street, by City Hall, where they were reviewed by Mayor Peters and then down Washington street to Dock square and into Faneuil Hall.

The first contingent in the parade included guests of honor and the pioneer suffragists of Massachusetts, who occupied automobiles. They included Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Judith Smith, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, Mrs. Guilford Dudley of Tennessee and Mrs. Alice Cram, first woman in this State to be nominated for State auditor.

Thirty-seven women well known in the suffrage cause wore sashes of white with yellow letters designating the States which have ratified the suffrage amendment. They were led by Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, who represented Massachusetts.

Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles directed a chorus which sang Mrs. Benjamin Pitman's "Women's Doxology" and other songs as the parade moved through the city.

PARADE MARSHALS.

Wearing small hats and dark clothes, as requested by the parade committee, the attractive appearance of the paraders evoked great applause along the line of march.

The parade marshals were Miss Fanny C. Osgood, Mrs. George W. Perkins, Mrs. H. Parker Whittington and Miss Marjorie T. Packard. Those who represented the thirty-seven States included Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis, Mrs. Hollam Morgan, Mrs. Oakes Ames, Mrs. Charles McDermott, Mrs. Franklin Hobbs, Miss Hobbs, Mrs. Fred L. Milliken, Miss Susan Bowker, Mrs. Evelyn Peverley Coe, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., Mrs. Francis Bird, Miss Amelia Baldwin, Mrs. Percy Haughton, Mrs. J. Lovell Little, Mrs. James Parker, Mrs. George L. Fiske, Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., Mrs. Harry Livingstone, Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, Mrs. Henry Russell, Miss Ruby Allen, Miss Pauline Allen, the Misses Carnegie, Mrs. Edward Stanwood, Mrs. Grace Burnham, Miss Florence Luscomb, Mrs. Edna L. Stantial, Mrs. Charles I. Quirk, Miss Vilette Crosby and Mrs. William Barry.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird presided at Faneuil Hall and introduced the following speakers: Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association; Mrs. Maud Wood Park, chairman of the National League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Guilford Dudley, who came from her home in Nashville, Tenn., to tell the women of Massachusetts how she and her assistants engineered ratification in Tennessee.

PROCLAMATION READ.

Mrs. James D. Tillinghast, chairman of ratification in Massachusetts, read Secretary Colby's suffrage proclamation, and the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham offered prayer.

Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung in honor of the women who wrote it, who was so prominently identified with the suffrage movement. Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles led the vast audience in the singing, and a soloist, Robert Boatner, contributed a group of Southern melodies.

The last event of the suffrage victory celebration will be the dinner at the Twentieth Century Club tonight by the Women's Industrial Civic League of Women Voters. About 150 women will attend, and Mrs. Julius Andrews, the president, will preside. The special guests will be Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Maud Wood Park and Mrs. Guilford Dudley.

New League Argument 'Silly,' Says Reed

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The triumphant cry uttered by Democratic campaign managers and administration supporters that the settlement of the trouble between Lithuania and Poland was a "vindication" of the League of Nations was characterized by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, Democrat, as "silly."

The Senator is trying loyally to support the Democratic ticket, but declared he could not permit this argument to go unchallenged. He said:

"I think it is about the silliest thing I have ever seen. The League managed to settle some insignificant differences between a couple of nations about an inconsequential island such as diplomatic representatives handle every day, and meanwhile twenty real wars are being waged. That's about the most ridiculous thing I ever heard from men of intelligence."

HARDING RAPS SHANTUNG ACT

Declares Senate Was Means of Preserving China's Trust in America

By Universal Service.

Marion, O., Sept. 22. — The United States Senate had been the means of preserving China's trust in America, after the Province of Shantung had been handed over to Japanese control at the peace conference, Senator Harding told members of a fraternal delegation from Columbus.

It was the first time that the Republican candidate has gone outside the league covenant to attack the peace treaty. He referred to the fact that China, at the direct suggestion of our Department of State, declared war against the Central Empires. Senator Harding said:

REJOICES AT SENATE STAND.

"And yet, in the Peace Conference, through contract secretly made, China had no voice in the settlements and instead of being awarded the freedom of her own people, under the gospel of self-determination for which America spoke, several millions of her people were delivered over to a rival nation, with the consent and approval of those who spoke for America at Paris," said Senator Harding.

"But when the covenant came into the United States, I rejoiced that here were Americans in the United States who said 'no,' and we did not approve of the Shantung award."

Mrs. Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburgh, better known as Lillian Russell, the stage celebrity, talked to a large crowd composed mostly of Marion women, fro Senator Harding's front porch.

RETRACTS MISQUOTATION.

Senator Harding dispatched a telegram to Franklin D. Roosevelt expressing regret that he had misquoted the Democratic ice-P'Vresidential candidate in a recent speech. Senator Harding's message was in reply to a wire from Roosevelt denying that he had written the conditions of Haiti and Santo Domingo and carried their votes in the League in his pocket.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE BEAUTIFUL ZEBAYA, FAVORITE OF ABDUL HAMID.

Mar Yohe, formerly Lady Francis Hope, in her amazing series on the subject of the famous Hope Diamond, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, tells of the fate that befell the beautiful slave girl, who rose to the highest favor in the Sultan's harem and then lost all. Whether the curse that followed all wearers and owners of the Hope Diamond was the cause of her downfall can best be judged by reading next Sunday's instalment.

GRAFT CHARGES HIT FALL RIVER OFFICIALS

Fall River, Sept. 22—Alderman W. Harry Monks has thrown a bomb among the local Aldermen by asking the appointment of a special committee to investigate rumors concerning the conduct of one or more Aldermen who are charged with a violation of their oath of office in connection with certain construction work. He claims that those Aldermen are in line with contractors who are doing work on local streets. Aldermen Monks added that the names of the Aldermen in question will be made public after the appointment of the committee.

MILLERAND TO BE REAL RULER

Accepts Candidacy Contingent on Radical Extension of Presidential Powers

By Universal Service.

Paris, Sept. 22. — Fundamental changes in the French form of government are expected to result from the election of Premier Alexandre Millerand to the presidency. He has agreed to accept the candidacy, contingent on a radical revision of the constitution so as to extend executive powers to the President in such a fashion that the President will be the ruler as well as the titular head of both the internal and external affairs of France.

As his term of office will be seven years and there is always the possibility of re-election, political observers point out the change is tantamount to the resumption of the monarchy by France.

The premier, whose election is regarded as an absolute certainty, has inaugurated a strong French foreign policy and he wants to remain in the position to maintain it if elected president. Under the present system of government it could readily change within a brief time.

ARREST HEAD OF SHIP COMPANY

Charge False Financial Statement Filed by Corporation Which Bought Revere Pier

Armenag Shahverdian, president of the Armenian Steamship Corporation, with offices in Room 219, No. 43 Tremont street, was arrested by Inspectors Flinn and Flaherty charged with making false statements relative to the financial condition of the property and assets of the company on July 13 and Aug. 2nd, in an issue of the Bahag, an Armenian newspaper, in violation of Chapter 428, Acts of 1911.

The company recently purchased the Ocean Pier at Revere for $40,000, making a deposit, it is said, of $4000 as a first payment. Shares were then sold for twenty-five dollars each, the police claim.

SEIZE BOOKS.

In advertising the sale of shares it was claimed that the corporation would purchase a fleet of steamers to run from their premises at Revere to Nahant. They contended that twenty-two million people pass through Revere in a season and that eight million would be obliged to pass through their pier at twenty-five cents a head.

Attention of the publication in the Bahag was called to the notice of Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz, who placed the matter in the hands of Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong of headquarters. After arresting Shahverdian all books, correspondence and letters were seized.

RELEASED IN BAIL.

Under cross-examination by Captain Armstrong, Shahverdian admitted that the firm took in $25,000 in Liberty bonds and money since filing a certificate with the commissioner of corporations, October 31, 1919.

He is also said to have stated that the company owns no boats of any kind, but intended to buy a fleet later when enough money had been taken in from shareholders. He was released in $2,000, furnished by Michael B. Nazzaro, North End real estate agent.

THE BRAIN OF SINN FEIN.

Shaw Desmond, author and journalist, gives the readers of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, next Sunday, a most remarkable pen picture of Arthur Griffith, whom he calls "the brains of Sinn Fein." In this article New Englanders will better understand the character and ability of the great Irishman who controls the destinies of the new republic.

Women voters of North Easton have organized a league to educate women on how to vote and to hear candidates for office give their views of political subjects. Mrs. Doris Ames is president. Mrs. Earnest Spooner is vice-president, Miss Monica Long secretary, and Miss Doris Carlson treasurer. Meetings will be held twice a month.

THRIFT WEEK TO BEGIN ON JANUARY 17, 1921

New York, Sept. 22.—Resolutions adopted by organizations co-operating with the National Thrift Week set the date for the 1921 observances for the week beginning January 17. Adolph Lewisohn of New York was re-elected chairman of the association.

PRICES TOO HIGH, SAY CLOTHIERS

"Must Come Down," President of Retail Association Tells National Convention

By Universal Service.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—"Clothing prices must come down; they are too high," Frederick Levy, president of the Retail Clothiers' Association, told a thousand members of that organization here. Clothing dealers from all parts of the country are here to discuss the details of the trade.

From the delegates some bits of good news were gathered. One is that woolens will be cheaper in the Spring. The manufacturers are beginning to catch up.

The price of clothes, however, will drop slowly so long as sewing machine girls get $45 a week. The average wage for needle trades is $47, the dealers say.

The pocket makers are the real aristocrats in the clothing business now. In some cases they get $100 a week.

Prices were the main topic at the first session. Levy said clothing prices must come down because they are too high.

But Fred Volland, a director of the association, gave a better reason. He said the American public had rebelled against high prices.

"The old clothes clubs," he said, have struck the right note. That was the American public's way of resistance a protest against an intolerable situation.

"Men who could afford to buy clothes at the high prices refused to do so, with the result that the market is overstocked. Men who used to have three and four suits are satisfied now to get along with one a year."

SUSPEND LICENSES OF STEAMBOAT MEN

Providence, Sept. 22.—The Federal steamboat inspectors suspended the licenses of Captain Charles P. Downes, master of the steamship Georgia, and Captain Edgar S. Angell, pilot of the vessel, after they had been found guilty of violating the navigation rules. A $50 fine was imposed on both and the suspension ordered for nine months. They were given a hearing following charges brought as the result of sinking a lighter in the Providence River, Aug. 31, which resulted in the loss of one life.

IRISH FRIENDS TO HOLD CONFERENCE ON SUNDAY

A meeting of the presidents of the Massachusetts branches, Friends of Irish Freedom, has been called for Sunday afternoon in the American House, by State President John F. Harrigan of Worcester. The purpose of this meeting is to arrange a State campaign within a week or two. It is expected that this convention will take action that will bear directly on national politics. It is also expected that action will be taken on the proposal of conducting a State-wide campaign to boycott British goods.

DAUGHTER OF CHINESE DIPLOMAT SECRETLY WED

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Coming as a surprise, even to her parents, was the news that Miss Bertha Yung Kwai had become the bride of Law Liverkrup at St. Anna Church, Annapolis, August 31.

The bride is the eldest daughter of the counselor and charge d'affaires of the Chinese legation, and the groom, a former captain in the Engineer Corps, is now a mining engineer of New York and Peru. Sudden departure of her husband for South America on business led the bride to disclose their marriage, which they had planned to keep a secret for the time being.

Marrying a German Costs Him $38,000

By Universal Service

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 22.—Arthur C. Johnson, a German wife is frugal and a good housewife, but through no fault of her own, she has become a costly possession.

The will of his grandmother, filed for probate here today cuts him off from her $38,000 estate because the grandmother does not want any of her effects to go to a German wife.

The grandmother expresses displeasure at his marriage to a woman born in the country with which the country was at war.

'GO AND GET IT' IS LIVELY FILM

By FRED J. McISAAC.

You know we folk who work on newspapers turn night into day and [illegible] other people's business more important than our own, don't very often get a write up or receive in public notice of any kind for that matter, so the photoplay which is now running at the Tremont Temple, I'll say is right between the eyes.

The newspaper turns up on your doorstep every morning more or less regularly and gets thrown in your face every afternoon by a heckler named and then not buy. You pay [illegible] and sometimes get about a cubic foot of paper all covered with type and you probably don't know any more about how it happened than you know why the grass grows.

DARK'S NEWSPAPER LIFE.

Not that such is a liberal education in newspaper life. To be sure a newspaper life ain't always quite as [illegible] as it appears on the Hatter hits [illegible] but I have seen days and nights when a newspaper office was a more exciting place as a [illegible] section on a fire.

I'm picture was produced by Marshal Neilan, one of the best I [illegible] his production has yet produced, as I [illegible] you and me. I don't pretend as many are all about the directors' board at the average savings bank.

The chief motive of the play is a fight between two great newspapers and the treasury of the publisher of one of these journals towards his employer, one of the prettiest girls you ever saw. She inherited her talents, of course, from a fighting parent by the name of O'Neil.

Then there is a lady reporter. She is a raving beauty. If she ever got a job on a real newspaper that newspaper would probably fail to come out because the staff would all drop dead.

STORY IS EXCITING.

But it is all right in the films. Anyway the lady journalist and the city reporter go out and perform miracles in the way of scooping the town while the bold, bad publisher gets the rake about the earth roof. There are no famous stars in "Go and Get It," but they are all good actors and the story is exciting enough for anybody.

There is no newspaper in Boston as magnificent as the plant which is shown so frequently in "Go and Get It," and any Boston publisher who was shown into the office of the publisher of the Harbor City that he would gargle with envy. The scenes were made in the offices of the Los Angeles Examiner, which I suppose the finest newspaper plant in the world so far as is known.

DOPING WINNERS JUST PLAIN ARITHMETIC, SAYS FULLERTON

NEITHER SECOND SIGHT NOR GUESSWORK ENTER

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Dope, crushed to earth, will rise again. The time for doping the World's Series is here.

In tackling the doping of the series this Fall I have been compelled, by changed conditions, to change the figures to conform with the new conditions in baseball. Although the dope on the season has worked out with amazing certainty in almost every club in the two leagues, the fact that the pitchers are under handicap and that the ball in use is livelier, compels me to alter the relative values of defensive and offensive work.

Before starting this series of dope articles I want to disabuse the minds of the fans of the idea that these figures are my own opinions or predictions. I am not in the business of predicting anything. I am engaged in working out, on a purely mathematical basis, the likelihood of one team beating another. The figures are based entirely upon the official averages of the season.

NOTHING BUT ARITHMETIC.

I start doping a series without an idea what the final figures will show or will prove. I have, of course, my opinion as to which team will win—but that has nothing to do with the mathematics. Very often the dope proves exactly the contrary to what I desire and hope it will. Half the time I am rooting for the team which, the dope shows, will not win.

I have, during a twenty-seven year study of baseball, evolved a system of applying the official figures of ball playing to results. There is no necromancy, sleight-of-hand, guesswork or second sight nor have I any moustaches with which to deceive you. It is simply the plain old arithmetic. It is not infallible. All I claim for it is that it s...ws, better than anything else, the comparative strength of ball clubs.

Now what I want you to do is to dope this out with me. The thing we want to know is which team will win the series. We must start with two premises: first that the series is absolutely honest, which I believe it will be. Second that each player will, in this series, play done to the standard he has shown himself capable of playing during this and preceding seasons.

OPPONENTS ALTER VALUES.

We cannot attempt, of course, to predict any accidents of influence. It was impossible, last Spring, to forecast Ray Chapman's death or Kopf's broken thumb.

All we can do is to take each player, figure what he is capable of doing in the field and what he ought to hit against the kind of pitching he must face.

Here, let me explain another misapprehension about this dope. It is not a comparison of ball players. It is not, in the least, for this reason, that the value of any player depends not so much upon his own ability in hitting as upon the kind of pitching he must face. Babe Ruth batting against George Tyler probably would figure lower than would Bagby batting against Tyler. We know Ruth is a better hitter, but Tyler is one of the few pitchers who can stop him, deal while Paskert can hit Tyler's yard. So when the figures indicate that one centre fielder is better than another, they mean he is better against the defence he must attack.

Now come on and dope with me. Here is the system:

Start a basis of 1000. If the attacking strength of a team exactly equalled the defensive strength of the opposing team then no runs ever would be scored.

It stands to reason that the attacking force is greater than the defensive strength. How much? Heretofore I have figured attacking strength at 540 and defensive strength at 460, on the basis that the total strength is 1000. This season the attacking force has been increased by the livelier ball and the rules handicapping pitchers.

I have worked out, on a basis of runs scored, and bases advanced in proportion to put outs, a new scale in which the attacking value of a team is 684 and the defensive value 316. I am certain these values hold good so far as runs scored this season by all Major League teams go. I have tested two Minor Leagues and, working backwards and then comparing results with their averages I find the figures apply closely to them as well.

COMPLICATIONS SET IN.

Now, if the attacking power of any team is 684 the attacking value of each individual is one-ninth of that—or 76. This is, of course, theoretical, based on the assumption that each batter is equal. We know, of course, that they are not. What we want to do is to establish a basic position value. Theoretically each of the nine players is equal, each rating 76. From that basis we must work out the value of the individual in the position.

That is, if the average batter is 76, what is Cobb? What is Ruth? To do this we take the player's records in hitting to base running, distance hitting, in runs scored, in getting base on balls—in every department of the game—and we how much above the average he is.

For instance, if the average batter is 760 (I add the cipher to express smaller degrees of difference, as it makes no difference so long as we maintain the ratio), I find that Ruth, on his season's work, rates 913—the highest rating I ever have figured any man.

You see the system?

When we come to figure defensive values we get into complications. We must figure the position values on another basis. If the total value of defence of any team is 316 the individual value of each of the nine would seem to be 35 plus. This is impossible, of course, for the reason that the pitcher is of much greater value than the right fielder in defensive work. Therefore, some of the series' difference in value of individuals in their positions, but each position has a different value.

GIVES POSITION VALUES.

To help you help me work out this dope problem I will give you the following table of position values, using 1,000 as the total defensive value of the team:

Pitcher	.305	Third base	.64
Catcher	.145	Left field	.65
First base	.93	Centre field	.80
Second base	.114	Right field	.85
Short stop	.116

This table is the result of figuring the number of chances and the character of chances in each position. I am certain it is approximately correct, because it works out in the games of the last few years regardless of class.

Therefore, if the pitcher's defensive value of a team, his value in our table value of a team, his value i nour table is 305—one-thousandths of 316, or roughly 107, catcher is 146—one-one-thousandths of 316 or 46, and so on, giving us the following rough table for use in computing values.

Pitcher	.107
Catcher	46
First baseman	29
Second baseman	36
Shortstop	35
Third baseman	20
Left fielder	15
Centre fielder	19
Right fielder	15

These are position values, expressed in the nearest fractions. They are the values of any player in that position. Now to get at the dope we are after we figure this way: If the average player in centre field is expressed by 18, what is Cobb worth? If the average pitcher's value is 107, what is Walter Johnson? We have thus reduced it to straight mathematics.

RED SOX NO AID TO WHITE

Drop Game in Cleveland While Chicago is Winning from Athletics

Cleveland, Sept. 22.—If the Chicago White Sox expected to get any help from the Boston Red Sox while they were manhandling the lowly Athletics they were doomed to disappointment, as while the White Hosiery gang were hammering a 9 to 2 defeat down the throats of the tail enders in the final game of the series, the Indians were seeing that score and then some, trimming the Red Sox, 12 to 1.

Hesitancy on the part of Sam Jones started him on the downward path in the third inning.

Jones didn't hustle to cover first on Covelesleie's bounder to McInnis, figuring Mac would make the play all by himself. It counted for a single and when followed Jamieson's single another single by Wambsy, double by Speaker and Smith and a single by Gardner after which it was goodnight for Jones. Harper took up the hurling burden and Johnston annexed the seventh inning. In the eighth inning, the total sum of runs being five.

BASEBALL FANS HAVE DAY OFF

Braves Routed Cubs in Final at Wigwam; Red Sox Here With A.'s Tomorrow

By NICK FLATLEY.

Baseball has a vacation in these parts today, which isn't such a bad idea, as interest in the national pastime is more or less copyrighted by the "crusaders" series twixt Indians and White Sox that opens on the morrow. When that hectic clash has rattled into history the experts will know the American League champion and be able to cut loose in the manner to which they are accustomed.

Our Braves concluded their western entertainment by handing the Cubs another licking and today they are cavorting in Brooklyn, where champions wave and series are a dime another dozen. After a one day stand there they tack around to East a bit to then return to the Wigwam for a thrilling finish with the pallid Phils.

The Sox are rattling back from a dolorous skirmish through the East and open their ultimate battle with the 30s when Detroit's the arrival of Ol' Quicker and Co. is most timely as the Pompeii flock are crowding the stiff Kaiser out of fifth place in the well known standing of circles.

Getting back to what really interests a gazabo at the ol' ball park, Rogers Hornsby has just about captured the first real baseball title that Cleveland ever boasted.

HELIOTROPE

Stirring Serial of a Father's Sacrifice

Read This Story Here Day by Day, Then Watch for It at Leading Theatres

"Heliotrope," from the story by Richard Washburn Child, is a Cosmopolitan production released as a Paramount-Artcraft picture.

Directed by George D. Baker

Screen Version Arranged

By Jane McLean

WHATEVER reply the unfortunate fair one might have made was forestalled by the arrival of Jimmie with the misplaced wedding ring. Heliotrope Harry bowed to Alice and sauntered away, prey to a bursting heart and an inward tumult new in his life of pleasure and self-indulgence. Sinking down on a secluded bench he raised tearful eyes to heaven and thanked God for the few moments of real happiness he had ever known.

To Alice he was a mere incident in the day's happenings, a kindly stranger who had made himself her cavalier for a passing moment. She did not even think enough about the incident to tell Jimmie. Nor did she feel drawn to the man who had protected her by any subtle feeling of relationship. The man who was giving thanks for his moment of reward knew this only too well. In vain he had hoped that she might show some unconscious indication that blood was answering the call of blood. Heliotrope Harry reflected later that perhaps it was better so; at least her utter indifference left his hands free.

Foiled Joe

And he had foiled Joe Hasdeck for the present. Out of the sadness that pervaded him on leaving Alice he began to find a glimmer of satisfaction in the dismay of his ex-wife's and her rapid flight from the tell-tale perfume associated with his own personality.

Joe's sudden departure had been hastened verily by a wholesome fear. To find the hated odor in her chocolates was ill omen enough, but to have it thrust upon her in the midst of a conversation in a secluded spot in the park showed that an enemy was lurking near.

She wondered if it could be true that this ex-husband of hers, whose hatred she had so well earned, had escaped. The mere thought caused her a shudder. She did not stop still she had locked herself in her room. Staggering to a chair, she sat down to try to think more clearly. She must find out whether her ex-husband was still in prison. That ought to be an easy task. In the seclusion of her room she began to regain some of her poise.

Rising, she moved to the dressing table to remove her hat, but as her eye caught the mirror it was held by a piece of paper fastened with several stickers to the glass. Her hands remained as though paralyzed as she read the astounding news that Heliotrope Harry was now a free man.

Evidently the clipping had been taken from a newspaper. Its headlines were clear enough:

Hasdeck Is Free.

Governor Mercer Extends Clemency to Heliotrope Harry.

Fine Prison Record Wins Pardon.

Trembling, she read the news item as far as it went, showing that freely evidence in the case had been responsible for the action. Devouring the article, she almost fell into a chair, bending her temples with her hands and seeming to see in a moment the collapse of all her plans.

Plainly Heliotrope Harry was in the hotel; it was he who had thrust the note under the door; it was he who had sprinkled the telltale perfume on the chocolates, and it was he who had sprayed the air near the park bench with that same warning perfume she had learned to fear as a harbinger of evil.

To remain within reach of his arm would be nothing less than suicide. For Joe Hasdeck had no illusion as to her ex-husband's willingness and ability to do her harm. She had seen him in action and she knew her life would not stand a moment between him and the girl if he found it necessary to put her out of the way.

The answer was plain; it was her cue to get away and remain away, to hide her time as secretly as possible, and when the psychological moment came to present her claims, realize what she could, and with the proceeds start life anew under an assumed name.

Not for a moment did she forego the hope of blackmailing the Andrews family. All her life she had lived in ease; now she was getting to an age where her youthful good looks were largely gone, and with them the possibility of securing such small stage parts as she had formerly filled.

Fabled Fountain

The marriage of Alice Hale was to be to her a fabled fountain of gold, a stream from which she would fill her pocketbook on demand.

That evening she paid her bill, and she king her trunk to the Grand Central parcel out of the hotel, leaving no address. Later an expressman removed the trunk to a smaller and less expensive hotel, where she hoped to remain till the Andrews family returned to the South, when she would follow, prepared to execute her happlessness-destroying purpose.

She called on Mr. Simon, and with a bravado that quite put the expectant money lender to shame assured him she was on the trail of the quarry and that in a few weeks she would be ready to spring the trap.

Mr. Simon, with admiration for her ability and also with regard to his own investment, was still anxious to hear more of her plans. She laughed at him.

"When the returns come in, Mon, will be time enough—that's all the information you want."

"Give me the dollars and I dont care who gets the information," he said gravely, "only I want to be sure of the money."

"Nothing stop me, Mon, Joe," she replied, with a new-born confidence, "it's all marked on the cards, and easy—so easy."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Humorous Hubby

Wife: "I wish I knew what to do with this skirt. It's good but somewhat out of style." Husband: "Why don't you give it to the laundress?" Wife: "Don't be funny, John. She's a good laundress, and I wouldn't offend her for the world."

The Plain Man

"An optimist is a man who cherishes vain hopes, and a pessimist is a man who nurses vain regrets." "And what is a man who does both?" "Oh, he's just a plain, ordinary person."

When Hearts Are Trumps

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LXII.

"SO GOOD!"

That was always the burden of Barbara's praise of the man she was engaged to.

She never spoke of how love for him—only of his kindness and consideration for herself.

She had charged Arthur not to tell John that she dreaded the Western trip. So in his friend's inquiries he replied as gently as he could:

"If I were you, Brandon, I would not press the matter further just yet. It will be time enough for you to make your plans a fortnight before the wedding. You have suggested a wonderful journey, and Barbara appreciates your generosity in the matter."

But John Brandon was not eager to have the girl appreciate his generosity. He wanted, most of all, to have as she used to be before she was engaged. He scarcely knew her for the merry creature he had fallen in love with.

Meanwhile, the early Autumn days were slipping by, and Barbara and her aunt were engrossed in the preparations for the wedding.

"You are so absorbed with your wedding plans that you are not thinking a bit about my birthday party for you," Arthur complained one evening. "Bah, I want you to stop that everlasting stitching and talk over the list that I have made out with, I may remark, Daisy's assistance."

An Invitation to Daisy

Daisy was dining at the Paiges'. John Brandon was not coming tonight. He had a directors' meeting that would keep him away from his betrothed.

When Barbara had learned that this was to be the case, she had asked Daisy to dine and spend the evening with her.

All through dinner Barbara had been more like her old self than she had been for many weeks. Daisy had told some amusing stories and again and again the two girls had laughed so heartily that the sound warmed Arthur Paige's heart. Soon Cynthia had seemed to enjoy the merry chatter.

After dinner, the spinster and the two girls had gone up to the sewing-room on the second floor to put some final touches to Barbara's wedding clothes, and Arthur Paige followed them, appearing among them with his protest and plea that Barbara give more attention to the plans he was making for her twenty-first birthday.

"Tea," Daisy seconded, "your uncle asked me to help him out with his list, so I drew up one which I brought to him this evening. Have you had a chance to look it over, Mr. Paige?"

"Yes. It's excellent. I will read it to you, Bab, if you will listen."

"Go ahead, dear Uncle," she smiled; "Auntie, you listen too and see if you think of any other young people we ought to ask."

Miss Cynthia spoke hesitatingly. "I do not want to interfere—but, really, Arthur, it is a bit silly of you to give this bar dinner just a month before the marriage. And I dont believe Barbara wants it especially anyway—do you, my dear?"

"Indeed I do!" the girl declared, all her love for her uncle springing up in a wish for a moment that she was not anticipating the pleasure he was planning for her. "Read the list, please, Uncle."

She listened eagerly, making an occasional suggestion. When Arthur had finished, Cynthia spoke once more.

A Salient Addition

"You are planning a rather pretentious affair. That is a formidable list."

"Not a bit too long," Arthur maintained stoutly. Then he added, his eyes upon his niece:

"Daisy, my dear, there is one name you have left out. I see that you omitted young Elliot's name and address."

He was prepared for a change in Barbara's expression. He was not prepared for the sudden start, for the pallor, for the contraction of the eyes as if she had received a sudden shock.

His sister's sharp voice startled him.

"Young Elliot!" she exclaimed quickly. "Why ask him?"

"Because I want him," the man said sternly. "I always liked him—and this is my party, Cynthia—mine and Barbara's. You do not object to my asking Bob—do you, Bab dear?"

She shook her head before she steadied her voice to reply.

"No uncle, but he will not come. I mean he does not come to Hempsfield any more. There is not the shadow of a likelihood of his accepting your invitation. I know that."

"Even so, it will please him to see that he is not forgotten by us and to have always liked him." Arthur stated practically.

Of course he will not come away off here for one evening's entertainment," Cynthia opined with an eagerness that suggested her wish was father to her thought.

Arthur said no more. Daisy talked faster and more gaily than before. All pretended not to see the hunted look in Barbara's eyes. Perhaps only one of the trio fully understood it. And she resented it.

Before Arthur went to bed that night he wrote to Robert Elliot of the plan to celebrate Barbara's twenty-first birthday on October fifteenth and urged him to be present on that occasion.

"I am asking this as an especial favor, my dear boy," he added. "I cannot explain my reasons—but, trust me, they are excellent."

"If he loves her, it is all right," Arthur mused. "If he does not, I must find some way to get out of the scrape I have got myself into."

"But—unless I am a fool—and he is another—Robert Elliot loves my little Barbara."

Scene From New Film Drama, 'Heliotrope'

Josephine Hasdeck, terrified on learning that her ex-husband is out of prison, decides to leave the hotel where Alice is staying

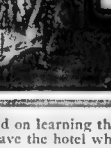
Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MY Son, in matters of love, some men are born wise, a few acquire wisdom; but many will not even permit wisdom to be thrust upon them.

For a youth of twenty regardeth love-making as a sport rather than as an art; but at forty he seeth his folly, and lamenteth it.



Now, in a certain city there dwelt a youth, who boasted openly, saying:

"Behold, I have never kissed a woman!"

And the damsels hearkened, and said, "How interesting!"

But the young men mocked him with jeers and laughter, and they formed a "Club," and elected the unkissed youth the only member thereof.

And they named him "The Lily," saying:

"Poor dub! He knoweth not what he hath MISSED!"

But there came unto him a Bachelor who KNEW WOMEN, and who had graduated in the School of Experience with high honors and many medals.

And the Bachelor cheered the Youth, saying:

"Brave, my Son! Thou art exceeding wise! Yea, thou art knowing beyond thy years!

"For lo, thou hast already awakened the curiosity of women, and made thyself a reputation amongst them. And henceforth EVERY damsel shall determine to be the first to kiss thee.

"Yet, I charge thee, as thou treasurest the thrills of life, be not tempted! Nay, in all thy days, kiss NO woman, for pastime, neither for curiosity; and give not any damsel a meaningless kiss, even to please her!

"Verily, verily, unto one man a kiss is a pastime, and unto another a privilege; unto one man a sacrament; and unto another an experiment; unto one man a habit, and unto another an ART.

"But unto the last of these only is there becometh a BORE.

"For he that kisseth not often, but wisely, knoweth the Real Thing from the Imitation, and cannot be deceived by 'artificial honey.'

"He kisseth not a damsel at the first opportunity, neither at the second, but passeth by until the psychological moment.

"For a kiss delayed is a kiss remembered.

"And when he hath ONCE kissed a woman, she never forgetteth it!

"And unto him every kiss is a Brand New THRILL!

"But unto the Kissing Bug all kisses are as ONE kiss—and that one flat, flavorless, tame, tepid and tiresome!"

A Salient Addition

"You are planning a rather pretentious affair. That is a formidable list."

"Not a bit too long," Arthur maintained stoutly. Then he added, his eyes upon his niece:

"Daisy, my dear, there is one name you have left out. I see that you omitted young Elliot's name and address."

He was prepared for a change in Barbara's expression. He was not prepared for the sudden start, for the pallor, for the contraction of the eyes as if she had received a sudden shock.

His sister's sharp voice startled him.

"Young Elliot!" she exclaimed quickly. "Why ask him?"

"Because I want him," the man said sternly. "I always liked him—and this is my party, Cynthia—mine and Barbara's. You do not object to my asking Bob—do you, Bab dear?"

She shook her head before she steadied her voice to reply.

"No uncle, but he will not come. I mean he does not come to Hempsfield any more. There is not the shadow of a likelihood of his accepting your invitation. I know that."

"Even so, it will please him to see that he is not forgotten by us and to have always liked him." Arthur stated practically.

Of course he will not come away off here for one evening's entertainment," Cynthia opined with an eagerness that suggested her wish was father to her thought.

Arthur said no more. Daisy talked faster and more gaily than before. All pretended not to see the hunted look in Barbara's eyes. Perhaps only one of the trio fully understood it. And she resented it.

Before Arthur went to bed that night he wrote to Robert Elliot of the plan to celebrate Barbara's twenty-first birthday on October fifteenth and urged him to be present on that occasion.

The Restless Sex

By Robert W. Chambers

"IT'S the only safety for us. There's no use. No hope, either.

And it's too dangerous—with no outlook, no possible chance that waiting may help us. There's not a shoot of a chance that we ever can marry. That is the real peril for us . . . so—I'll play the game. . . . I'll go to him now—before it's too late—before you and I have made each other wretched for life—and before I have something still worse on my conscience!"

"What?"

"My husband a death! He'll kill himself if I let you take me away somewhere."

After a silence he said in a low voice:

"Is that what you have been afraid of?"

"Yes."

"You believe he will kill himself if you divorce him?"

"I—I am certain of it."

"Why are you certain?"

"I can't tell you why."

He said, coolly:

"Men don't do that sort of thing as a rule. Weak intellects seek that refuge from trouble; but his is not a weak character."

"I won't talk about it," she said. "I've told you more than I ever meant to. Now you know where I stand, what I fear—his death—if I dishonor dad's memory and go away with you. And if I ask divorces, he will give it to me—and then kill himself. Do you think I could accept ever you on such terms as these?"

What She Feared

"No," he said.

He looked at her intently. She stood there very white, now, her gray eyes and the masses of chestnut hair accentuating her pallor.

"All right," he said, "I'll take you to town."

"You need not."

"Won't you let me?"

"Yes, if you wish. . . . When you go downstairs tell them to send up my trunks. Tell one of the maids to come."

"You can't go off that way, tonight. You've two guests here," he said in a dull voice.

"You will be here."

"No."

"Why not?"

"Oswald called me on the long-distance wire an hour ago. He has asked me to go to town and look at the sketch he has made for the fountain. I said I'd go."

She dropped to the couch and sat there with gray eyes remote, her shoulders, in their jewelled kimono, huddled under her heavy mass of hair.

"Stay here for a while anyway," he said. "There's no use taking action until you have thought it over. And such action is not necessary, Steve."

"It is.

"No. There is a much simpler solution for us both. I shall go abroad."

"What?" she exclaimed sharply, lifting her head.

"Of course. Why should you be driven into the arms of a husband you do not love just because you are afraid of what you and I might do? That would be a senseless proceeding, Steve. The thing to do is to rid yourself of me and live your life as you choose."

A Bit Too Late

She laid her head on her hands, pressing her forehead against her clenched fingers.

"That's the only thing to do, I guess," he said in his curiously colorless voice. "I came too late. I'm paying for it. I'll go back to Paris and stay there a while. Time does things to people."

She nodded her bowed head.

"Time," he said, "forges an armor on us and . . . I'll wait until mine is well riveted before I return. You're quite right, Steve. . . . You and I can't go on this way. There would come a time when the intense strain would break us both—break us both in our evolution and our sense of honor—and we'd go away together—or make each other wretched here. . . . I'll. . . . Because there's no real happiness for you and me without honor, Steve. Some people can do without it. We can't.

"We might come to think we could. We might take the chance. We might rip all the gold paint and try to 'count the world well lost.' But there would be no happiness for you and me, Steve. For, to people of our race, happiness is a composite. Honor is part of it; loyalty to ideals is another; the world's respect, the approval of our own hearts, the preservation of our responsibility to the civilization that depends on such as we—all these are part of the only kind of happiness that you and I can understand, and experience. . . . So we must give it up. . . . And the best way to do that way I offer. . . . Let he go out of your life for a while. . . . Live your own life as you care to live it. . . . Time must do whatever else is to be done."

The girl lifted her disheveled head and looked at him.

"Are you going tonight?"

"Yes."

"You are not coming back?"

"No, dear."

She dropped her head again.

There was a long silence that afternoon. He took a gay and casual leave of Helen and Grayson, where he found them together in the library.

"I'll be back tomorrow?" inquired the latter.

"I do not want. I may be detained for some time," said Cleland carelessly. And went upstairs.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Meredith

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

MEREDITH

VARIATIONS — Merideth, Meredeth, Merriweather, Merriman, Murray.

RACIAL ORIGIN — Anglo-Saxon.

SOURCE — A sobriquet, or nickname.

THERE'S a word in the English language which is responsible for a great deal of misunderstanding among us as to the character of the English public in medieval times. It is the word "merry." It is met with constantly in fiction, where it really belongs as lending local color to the olden days, and also in historical relics.

The misunderstanding on our part arises from the fact that the word had a very different meaning in those days. The English of medieval times were no more frolicking or boisterous than those of today. The word meant "happy," "contented," "satisfied," "pleasant" and "peaceful." Of all these meanings, that of "peaceful" is probably the closest to it.

There was nothing incongruous, therefore, in the hope of the religious Englishman of those days for a "merry death," and by that same tendency which leads the human race, when not too bound up in conventions, to name its children after its hopes and aspirations, "Mery-deth" would often be added as a sobriquet to a child's name, becoming a family name in the course of time in a great many instances.

The family name of Merriman is accounted for quite similarly. A merry man in those days was a peaceful, contented, happy man, not necessarily a laughing or noisy one. This sobriquet was one more likely to be given to a man as a adult than as a child, but would have no less tendency to develop into a family name. We have a relic of the old-time use of merry-weather (merry-weep!) in the use of "fair weather" in that song which begins, "It's always fair weather, when good fellows get together—" The family name of Murray is, of course, for the most part of Celtic origin, but when it is not, it is merely a corrupted spelling of Merry, from the old forms such as "Richard le Mery."

Rose Meredith, born at Leominster, England, in 1708, and educated at Oxford, one of the first American Merediths on record, came to this country in 1729. In February, 1730, he landed at Philadelphia, where he entered the counting house of John Carpenter, a merchant. In 1738 he married his employer's daughter, Martha Carpenter. He was a very good friend of George Washington, who was, when they first met, a Virginia colonel. In 1765, it is recorded, this Meredith signed the celebrated "Non Importation Resolutions," which were, as we all remember, the forerunner of the Declaration of Independence. In 17[illegible], Meredith, a well-to-do citizen, gave one thousand pounds, in silver, to feed and clothe the patriot army at Valley Forge.

He never held public office; and, due to his age, he was not a soldier in the Revolution, though his son, Samuel, served as a major in [illegible]. Meredith's son, the elder Meredith, giving more largely of his means than he [illegible] with no hope of repayment; and, serving on every committee of citizens and public safety board, showed that he was as good a soldier as his son, the major. This Meredith, Oxford graduate, banker, business man, lover of his country, has come down as one of the quiet army who, by their sacrifices, made the success of the Revolution possible.

Want to Feel Just Right?

— Take an NR Tonight —

JUST TRY IT AND SEE how much better you feel in the morning. That "logy," headachy, tired, don't-know-what's-the-matter feeling will be gone—you'll feel fine.

TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your over-worked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Pills, oil, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and even kidneys, not forcing, but toning and strengthening these organs. The result is prompt relief and real, lasting benefit. Make the test. Nature's Remedy will act promptly, thoroughly, yet so mildly, so gently, that you will think nature herself has come to the rescue and is doing the work.

And oh, what relief! You'll be surprised to find how much better you feel—how clear-headed, better every way.

If habitually or stubbornly constipated, take one NR Tablet such a night for a week. Then you'll endeavor to take some every day. Just an occasional NR Tablet after awhile will be sufficient to keep your system in good condition—and how you'll feel!

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and youthfulness to hair when faded, streaked or gray.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture with the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre to your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet for those who desire to have that youthful appearance. It is intended for the cure, relief or prevention of disease. Advertisement.

High Aims of the Veterans' Non-Partisan League

Former service men of the World War are going into politics. They are forming a non-partisan political league. It is a good and a proper thing for them to do so.

The theory of this league is correct and it ought to work out in practice to the great benefit not alone of the men and women who served their country in war, but also to the country itself.

The chief aims of the league are to show appreciation of candidates for public office who have shown real appreciation of patriotism; to support those who believe in practical help for the battered, broken and sick, and also for those who are entitled to material aid in their pursuit of the high cost of living; to place in the fullest light of publicity those who oppose beneficial legislation for soldiers and sailors.

No one can find fault with such a program. Indeed, it should meet with encouragement from all honest Americans. There should be financial as well as moral encouragement that the league may publish the records and beliefs of all men who aspire to rule in our public affairs.

This is not a movement of the American Legion or any other war service organization. It is an impulse of young patriots to compel the truth about politicians that hypocrites of all parties may be known and receive their just desserts.

It has been proved that the advice of highbrows of the Legion to keep entirely aloof from all things political, advice which has prevailed up to now, was not inspired in good faith, or, at least, has not worked out to the advantage or best interest of service organizations and their members.

Twelve States have joined in the movement. It is a splendid symptom of intelligence. Success to it.

California is interested in the news: "Japan feels that she ought to be excused from any program for international disarmament, because her position is exceptional."

Her position is VERY exceptional. She is increasing the number of Japanese so rapidly that the Japanese islands cannot possibly take care of them. Superfluous Japanese children agree with many other intelligent human beings that California provides the finest residence in the world. They know they cannot get California without weapons, hence the objection to disarmament.

If wise, however, the Japanese would disarm and give up the California dream. This western edge of the Pacific is to remain white. The Japanese and other Asiatics must get along with the other side of the Pacific.

An Italian scientist shows that grapes can be made into excellent bread. Quite important, should prohibition ever reach Europe, for the discovery would preserve, partly, the value of the vineyards. It is not likely, however, that prohibition will control France, Italy or any other Latin nation in this or the next century. It may do better in England, for prohibition succeeds naturally where whiskey, gin, etc., are acclimated as national poisons.

More interesting than the plan to make bread out of the grape is the alleged discovery here in America of a chemical process for transforming sawdust into food for cattle. If the process does not cost more than the food is worth, it will be a blessing to the farmers—until a trust gets hold of the process and takes the cheapness out of it.

Mr. Cox, in his wisdom, decides that a "cash bonus is not necessary for the soldiers." He thinks they can arrange without that. His plan is to let each soldier have a piece of ground, so that he may own his home and become a good citizen. Many soldiers thought they were good citizens already, WITHOUT owning a home. Others would ask, "If I cannot have any cash bonus, how am I going to BUILD a home; how am I going to keep it going after I have built it?" Mr. Cox suggests "colonies or settlements for soldiers." These soldiers don't want "settlements," they want what they are entitled to, at least part of the extra money that every other American earned at home while the soldiers were in the army working for a dollar a day. If to the cash bonus a piece of good ground could be added to be used for a home, or not as the soldier saw fit, so much the better.

London reports that for one night and half a day, at the Brisbane Hotel, in Launceston, Tasmania, the Prince of Wales on his travels had to pay $7,500. The hotel keeper had probably heard of the peasant that made the Czar pay $5 for an egg, on the ground that although eggs were not scarce Czars were.

In the State of New York you will see the power of the voting woman illustrated in an interesting way. That State has just disgraced itself by passing a law making prize-fighting legal, encouraging brutality, establishing centres of crime and venereal disease.

You need not doubt that women will stop the prizefighting before the promoters have gone far or made much money.

There is in women a sense of justice that will soon end prize-fighting and public gambling.

Those investing money in either make a bad investment.

The London News quotes Lloyd George as follows:

"Britain went into the war on behalf of a small Catholic country, and Irishmen in America and the colonies had to help pay. Then why not Irishmen in Ireland?"

That is interesting. Which WAS the "small Catholic country." Presumably it was Belgium. Or, possibly, France?

As a matter of fact, France and Belgium between them, by going into the war so ably, SAVED ENGLAND. It was not England that saved Belgium or France.

Jimmy and His War Bride

Copyright, 1920, by International Feature Service, Inc.

Our hero, to put a little pep into his campaign, prepares a thrilling Napoleonic tableau called "1920." His bride impersonates the Daughter of the Regiment, and the fourteen children are the Old Guard. It was a magnificent sight. On swept the serried ranks with loud shouts of "Lo, Pop!" "This is perfectly ripping!" "May I not suggest three cheers" and other expressions habitually used by military men. Suddenly, without the slightest previous notification, there appeared a ferocious—

More Truth Than Poetry

It Is Easy to Be Cheerless

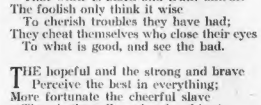
By S. E. KISER

IT never pays to journey far
In search of grief or shocking sights;
We need not rush where troubles are
To vindicate our precious rights.
Why turn to look through every crack
To see what evils lurk behind?
We prize too much the things we lack,
Too often think the fates unkind.

WHY not look out for things to praise,
And be courageous and alert?
Who still believes it ever pays
To magnify the little hurt?
With valiant hopes and words of cheer
The man whose purposes are sound
Hunts with a vision that is clear
Where grace and goodness may be found.

IT never takes the fretful long,
However bright the sky or blue,
To find that everything is wrong,
That white is black and truth untrue.
The foolish only think it wise
To cherish troubles they have had;
They cheat themselves who close their eyes
To what is good, and see the bad.

THE hopeful and the strong and brave
Perceive the best in everything;
More fortunate the cheerful slave
Than is the sullen, cheerless king!
No wisdom's needed to believe
The world goes on from bad to worse,
Or sit in idleness and grieve
Because one has a flattened purse.



WE ARE IN FAVOR OF LETTING THEM DECIDE

"Women dress to suit themselves," says one of them. She may be right. Perhaps they undress for the same reason.

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM

The Governor of South Carolina says he expects his State to go Democratic this Fall. We may add that we expect Christmas to come a week ahead of New Year's.

WHY DOES HE CONTINUE TO RUN?

The Prohibition party's candidate for the presidency reminds us of the absent-minded professor who goes around hunting for his spectacles when he has them on.

Letters to the Editor

Might Help Crooks

Editor Boston American:

I observe among the American's "letters to the editor" a communication from E. A. C., of Allston, who intimates that he has worn out considerable shoe leather (in elevators?) journeying to the top floors of office buildings only to find that the occupants of the office have "gone for the day."

E. A. C. suggests an "In and Out" indicator, installed close to the building directory in the lower hall.

I trust that E. A. C. will see "nothing personal" in it when I point out what a help such an indicator might prove to key-workers, second-story thieves and office-building looters in general and how much work it would give policemen and detectives.

British "Dope"

Editor Boston American:

I read your editorial relative to the English "dope" scandal in India, etc. It strikes me her influence in the newspapers is a more deadly "dope" to America, at least, than the opium. Newspapers, churches, colleges and stage as well as private individuals are spreading this baneful "dope" dividing our country now, as it was never divided before. While speakers are directing attention to divisions in Ireland, etc., our own country is by far less united as a people than the Irish Republic. It is about time to call a turn on those Tory and English agents before things get any worse.

Boycott Profiteers

Editor Boston American:

I am very much interested in the movement inaugurated by the girl employes of this city relative to the eating problem. I am a steady boarder in the Boston lunch rooms and I know from an extended experience that the eating public is being robbed by the extortionate prices charged in many restaurants of this city, and the only successful way to fight the profiteering game is to boycott every establishment charging excessive prices, and may the worthy movement begun by our young women be extended to all parts of our city (not only to restaurants) but all places where unreasonable prices are charged.

MAKING REAL AMERICANS OF ALIEN RECRUITS

By Maj. O. H. Schrader,

Coast Artillery Corps.

AT the present time we read so much about what the new United States Army is doing but the dominant point seems to have been forgotten or else but lightly touched.

I mean the Americanizing influence that the Army has on its new members. During the recent war it was common knowledge that people could live in this country for twenty or more years and still remain alien in speech, customs and allegiance. This situation is due to the fact that little use is made of the agencies already established by the government, which can successfully combat it.

Powerful Factors

The armed forces of our country are powerful factors in Americanizing our cosmopolitan population, but as comparatively few instances is this recognized. If it were possible that every male immigrant served an enlistment before entering any other field of endeavor, we would find that he would not instinctively seek the foreign quarters of our cities upon discharge.

Instead he would be a real American, not a foreigner in America. Wherein lies this influence? It is the flag. He sees it every day—sees it saluted by all—he salutes it himself. He hears but one language and that is the American. He eats American food served in American style. He lives like an American youth, he sees American institutions at close range—he is one of them himself. He goes to an American school, taught by Americans, he plays American games and learns American habits.

His naturalization is facilitated by his service, and he is assisted in getting his papers at no cost at all. After all these influences have left their marks, such a man will be anxious to be a citizen, practically as well as theoretically.

Never Completed

During the demobilization period, I found numbers of draft men who had taken out "first papers" years ago but never completed the requirements for citizenship. After periods of service ranging from a few months to two years these same men were eager to become full fledged citizens. Why? Because their service had taught them what they never could learn in the Italian, Russian or Polish quarter of their home towns, and that is a true appreciation of America and her institutions.

The service has made many such citizens who otherwise would have remained foreigners heart and soul. Having such a powerful and convenient agency for making real Americans, let us use it to the limit. A great advantage accrues to the individual, but more to the nation.

Stars and Stripes

The food that Lord Mayor MacSwiney didn't eat may be sufficient to feed a mighty rebellion.

That kissing carries germs is only a theory, but it is an established fact that it carries paint.

Soviet Russia is the alarm clock of the world—trying to wake foreign governments to the fact that the masses must be given more consideration. But foreign governments, like indolent men, pay no heed to the throbs of the alarm clock.

Some men expect opportunity not only to knock at their door but to walk in and yank them out of bed.

What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and then have to pay it out for a pair of shoes?

Metropolitan city editors "play up" trunk mysteries as if there was some novelty about them, whereas everybody who has ever been on a vacation trip has had a trunk mystery. The mystery centres about the whereabouts of the trunk.

Love's blindness is sometimes cured by millinery bills.

In these days of high prices the dead are about the only things that haven't been raised.

MARRIAGE IS SELDOM WHAT WE EXPECT

By Beatrice Fairfax

"LIVING in Italy is analagous to the experiences of matrimony. Disillusionment follows the first glamour, after which comes a recognition of both graces and shortcomings; a knowledge that makes bearing and forbearing necessary; an affection that abides both in spite of and because of faults and virtues."

A friend sent me this quotation recently and asked me if I didn't agree that it gave a pretty clear answer to the question, "What's marriage?" And remembering a month I once spent in Italy, I couldn't resist a loud chuckle as I answered, "Yes."

When We Love

When we love—when we have an ideal, we make up for ourselves the something we hope that beloved, ideal object will be. We want it to be as we would have it. Ours. All in all the creation of our imagination, the answer to our longings. Again—ours.

But nothing is like that. Everything is a little different from what we'd have it. Everything is touched with its own reality and is established on its own basis of fact. And what's the use of being miserable over the stubborn reality that things aren't what we want them to be? One has to make the best of things as they are and to learn to be glad that they are as they are.

First the Glamour

So in marriage. First the glamour. The romance and the dream—the quick charm which makes the beloved seem the answer to our prayers—the consummation of our dreams. Perfection seen through the veil of our own emotions.

Then facts. "The Arno is a mudpuddle"—the beloved is not beautiful or wonderful or good or what we believed. And then the realization that there is plenty to make up for the first disappointments.

Finally, the devotion that is as much an adjustment to and an acceptance of faults as it is a rejoicing in the virtues greater even than those of our dream. That's marriage!

The Spectator

MORALE

WHAT is the chief end of man?

What am I here for?

Why was I born?

And what's the use, generally speaking.

These questions are the basic questions of every human being. There is none living that has not puzzled over them. Perhaps there is none living or dead that has answered them with entire satisfaction to himself and the thinking world.

The Puritans had an answer rough and ready. So did the churchmen of a thousand years ago. It was: "To glorify God."

The answer of another type of mind has been: "To enjoy myself."

Still another: "To do my duty in the position where Providence has placed me."

What is your answer—if any?

If you are interested in the matter you will be vastly entertained, and you will get a deal of instruction, from G. Stanley Hall's recent book, "Morale, the Supreme Standard of Life and Conduct."

For Dr. Hall's answer to the riddle of the eternal Sphinx, "What is the supreme goal of man, and what is the mind of Destiny?" is simply—Morale.

Or, in other words, Health.

But Health is used in its deeper and wider sense, as whole-th, or a state of wholeness. It means the maximum of vitality, life abounding.

It means being fit, up to the mark, with the tides of life, or the developmental urge, will to live, entelechy, elan vital, or whatever you may choose to call it.

It is this surge of Life Power that is the supreme aim of nature.

He Does Not

THE man who has to pitch the hay
Says: "Oh, to sit me down
Beside a desk and rest the way
Those fellows do in town!"
The office man thinks of the charm
Of new-mown hay and sighs;
But does he hasten to the farm?
We pause to hear replies.
